

NEW TRIAL IS GIVEN JONES, BLOOD WORTH BY SPECIAL JUDGE

ANOTHER LEASE ON LIFE IS WON BY TAYLOR BOYS

Appeal Granted Jones and Bloodworth on Plea Trial Juror Was Kinsman of Slain Man.

NEXT MONDAY SET AS NEW TRIAL DATE

Defense Attorneys Announce They Will Ask Change of Venue When Case Is Called.

Butler, Ga., April 10. — Willie Jones and Gervis Bloodworth, Taylor county youths, under sentence to hang for the murder of Howard F. Underwood, medicine salesman, were granted a new trial on an extraordinary motion here this afternoon.

Judge Eschel Graham, of McIntosh, presided, and granted the new trial. Judge C. F. McLaughlin being disqualified.

The new trial was ordered on the ground that one of the trial jurors, when the two youths were convicted, was a distant cousin of the slain man.

Trial Set for Monday. Following the appeal decision, Solicitor General Walker Klumpp announced that the state was ready for trial, and Judge Graham set the trial for next Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

Defense attorneys announced that they would move next Monday for a change of venue, and Judge Graham informed them that they could be heard on such a motion before Monday, the time set for the opening of the trial.

It was understood that Judge Graham will not preside at the trial. No suggestion of a possible judge to preside was made here today.

Jones and Bloodworth were present in the court room when the announcement of the new trial was made. There was little surprise on the part of the youths, for they have steadfastly contended that they would be given another chance. There were few spectators in the court room when the judge rendered his decision.

The youths were carried back to the Muscogee county jail some time late today under guard, where they will remain incarcerated until the date of trial.

Killed in 1923. Underwood was killed December 3, 1923, his body being found in his automobile, parked alongside an unattended road, after a two-day search. Jones and Bloodworth were shortly afterward arrested and charged with the crime. Jones later confessed, saying he and Bloodworth asked Underwood for a ride in his car, then shot him, the object being robbery.

The confession was admitted as evidence before a jury in Taylor superior court and they were convicted and sentenced to be hanged.

After the conviction and sentence of death on the gallows, attorneys for Jones and Bloodworth fought through all the courts of the state in an effort to save the lives of their clients.

In Shadow of Gallows. Every effort failed and January 9 was fixed as the date for the double execution at Butler. The condemned boys had been in jail in Columbus since their conviction and they were brought to Butler to be hanged. Just before the sheriff prepared to actually place the prisoners on the gallows, an attorney for Jones and Bloodworth presented a court order enjoining the execution on the ground that the

WEATHER PROPHECY PREDICTS EASTER TO BE MOSTLY FAIR

Washington, April 10.—Although showers have made Easter shopping a damp, if not not-dreaded wet pursuit east of the Mississippi river in the last day or so, the weather bureau recently sufficiently tonight to predict "mostly fair weather Saturday and Sunday."

It made an exception in favor of showers, however, along the South Atlantic coast tomorrow, and in the lower lake regions, northern New England and northern and central New York tomorrow night or Sunday.

The temperature, which is much less important than moisture in relation to an Easter frock, will be somewhat of this and somewhat of that. It will be lower tomorrow in the middle and North Atlantic states and higher in the Ohio valley, the lower lake region and Tennessee, says the forecast, but Sunday it will decline in the lower lake region and rise in the Atlantic and east gulf states.

Jilted Lover Dies as Bomb Explodes in His Automobile

POLICE ADVANCE VENDETTA THEORY

New Brunswick, N. J., April 10. — Samuel Van Chiere, a barber of Piscataway, died late Friday from injuries received a few hours earlier when a time-bomb, placed in his automobile, exploded while he was driving with two friends.

The death of Van Chiere was the third similar automobile killing in the east in the last few weeks. In both cases the bomb was attached to the ignition system and exploded when the victim touched the starter. The bomb that killed Van Chiere, however, was touched off by a clock-work mechanism.

Van Chiere was blown through the roof of the automobile. His friends, who were riding in the back seat, were only slightly injured. The car was completely wrecked.

Van Chiere is believed to have been the victim of a vendetta. Five years ago, it is said, he fell in love with the picture of a girl then in Italy and persuaded the girl to come to America, but on the night set for their wedding she eloped with a neighbor.

Since then Van Chiere has escaped violent death several times. At one time his house was blown up by a bomb. At another time he was ambushed and wounded in the leg by a bullet. It is thought that recent automobile bomb killings may have suggested the manner in which the man was finally killed.

After the blast Van Chiere was conscious for a few moments and said to have mumbled that he knew who killed him but that to tell would do no good.

SCHOOL EXPENSES SLASHED TO MEET PAY OF TEACHERS

Depletion of Practically Every Item in Budget of Department Recommended by Committee.

The depletion of practically every item in the budget of Atlanta's school department was recommended by the special budget committee of the board of education after a stormy session Friday afternoon, but finally it was voted to transfer sufficient funds to make up the salaries account to about November 15.

If the recommendations are adopted by the board at the regular April meeting Tuesday, and that course is considered as certain, erection of a new unit for Hoke Smith Junior High school is practically assured.

City council Monday authorized Mayor Walter A. Sims to borrow $150,000 from local banks for construction of the building, but the mayor has reported that the banks have refused to loan the money unless the school board adopts a budget setting aside a sufficient fund to pay all salaries for the year.

Transfer Is Authorized. The board, at a special meeting last week, authorized the transfer, and voted appointment of a committee to go over the budget in order to determine what appropriations could be revised. In view of that action, and in consideration of the fact that six of the 12 board members, as members of the budget committee, voted Friday to transfer the amount, it is considered certain that the recommendations will be adopted by the board Tuesday.

The step is one of the most drastic ever taken by the school board. Board members contended that it is justifiable in view of the serious situation now faced by the school department.

To make up the necessary sum, it was decided that whatever legislation is finally drafted provision must be made to leave to the counties the present one cent of the gasoline tax they are getting under the law, but with the proviso that these funds shall be employed by the counties on the state road system within the county. This insures that there will be no interference with arrangements already made by a number of counties which have pledged their portion of the gasoline tax for road work commenced or planned.

It was also decided tentatively not to make any change in the rate of the three cents tax on gasoline would be sufficient to retire the bonds and pay interest and the final vote of the committee was in favor of $70,000,000 as the amount for the proposed issue.

Governor Acts Today on Plea Of Ida Hughes

Executive Is Expected To Order Commutation of Sentence.

Governor Clifford Walker this afternoon will announce his decision on the appeal of Mrs. Ida Hughes for commutation of her death sentence to life imprisonment, he stated Friday.

While he has given no indication of what his decision will be, it is confidently expected that he will grant the mercy petition. It was rumored at the capitol on Friday that one of the reasons actuating the governor in his plan to make the announcement today was that the news might come in the form of an Easter Sunday present.

A brief hearing on the case was held in the governor's office Friday morning, following decision by the state prison commission Thursday to recommend clemency in the case. The hearing lasted only ten minutes and was confined to presentation of additional petitions for clemency by attorneys for the condemned woman and a formal filing of the record in the case with the governor.

Mrs. Hughes was condemned to death by a Fulton superior court jury following her trial for shooting to death her mother-in-law, Mrs. M. C. Hughes. It was brought out in the testimony that the victim had acted in a manner to arouse the anger of the younger woman and, in its recommendation for executive clemency, the prison commission pointed out that, while there was perhaps not sufficient provocation to reduce the crime from murder to manslaughter, nevertheless there was provocation such as to make the actual slaying an act committed in the heat of passion and not after deliberation.

There was no opposition to the plea for commutation before the governor. The trial judge, prosecutor, seven of the trial jury and Sheriff James I. Lowry and his deputies all have written asking that the sentence be commuted, while many thousands of individuals have either written personal letters or signed petitions on behalf of the condemned woman.

It was also decided tentatively not to make any change in the rate of the three cents tax on gasoline would be sufficient to retire the bonds and pay interest and the final vote of the committee was in favor of $70,000,000 as the amount for the proposed issue.

HERRIOT AND CABINET TENDER RESIGNATIONS WHICH ARE ACCEPTED

Disabled War Veteran Dies After Baptismal Ceremony

RELATIVES TO FACE PROSECUTION

Delaware, Ohio, April 10.—Murder charges may be filed against one or more persons who participated in the fatal baptism of William H. McCoy, gassed war veteran, Prosecutor Eugene S. Owen declared Friday night, following a coroner's inquest.

According to the coroner's findings, McCoy, weak from tuberculosis, met his death Thursday as result of being immersed in a tub of cold water by relatives who wanted to "save his soul."

McCoy died at the hands of his 25-year-old wife, Bertha McCoy, his father-in-law, J. M. Wilson and the Rev. J. H. Penning, Campbellite pastor of Magnolia Springs, Ohio, who performed the rite, the coroner found.

According to the testimony at the inquest, the three lifted the suffering veteran from his sick bed and immersed him in the tub of cold water despite his protests. McCoy was found dead when he was removed from the trough.

"No one has been arrested yet," Prosecutor Owen said. "The matter will be presented to the grand jury. Meanwhile I shall probably file manslaughter charges against one or more of the persons who took part in the rite. We are investigating all angles of this case and may decide it is murder."

Wilson, the father-in-law of McCoy, declared on the stand that he "wanted to save the soul of my son" and therefore went ahead with the ceremony against the advice of two physicians, Drs. K. P. Feaster and J. H. James, and the humane society.

McCoy himself opposed the immersion and called in the Rev. L. E. Rush, a Methodist minister who baptized him by sprinkling. Rush testified.

Two meetings were held Friday at the chamber of commerce over which Judge Bryan and W. R. C. Smith, president of the chamber of commerce, presided jointly. These rallies were in response to an urgent call issued by these two men to the civic, social and industrial leaders of the city. As a direct result nearly $3,000 was pledged and plans laid so that it may be possible to announce tonight that the fund has been subscribed in full.

Smith Is Determined. "The Atlanta drive is awakening to its obligation in this cause," Mr. Smith announced Friday night. "We are going to get this money either Saturday or Monday, and that is all there is to it. The American Legion, one of the finest bodies of young men that we have in this city, should have never taken the field to get this fund. It is the duty of every patriotic citizen to put this thing over and not the fellow who already has sacrificed so much."

At the meeting held at noon members and representatives of the Rotary club pledged themselves to raise $500 within their organization. Members

SHIP OF SCIENTISTS LOCATED BY NAVY OFF PANAMA COAST

Washington, April 10.—Wireless communication has been established with the scientific ship "Arcturus," unheard from since March 23, the navy department was advised Friday night.

The naval radio station at Panama established communication with the "Arcturus" by relay through two ships. The navy department was merely advised that the missing vessel had been heard from and the contents of the message were not forwarded to Washington.

The petition will be presented in council May 4, the committee decided, which would force holding the election within a month. It is hardly likely that council would be able to act on the committee's request before that time, as under the rules, any amendments to the charter are automatically referred to the charter revision committee, and it would be impossible for that committee to report before May 4.

Permanent officers also were elected Friday night, and the committee

Negro Arrested Admits He Was in Liquor Car Apprehended by County Officer Gentry.

Decatur, Ga., April 10.—(Special.) With admission by Berry Harrell, negro, of Orme street, Atlanta, that he was one of the occupants of the liquor car pursued by County Officer S. D. Gentry, who was killed, arrest of the slayer of Gentry is considered certain by DeKalb county officers.

It is stated that the slayer is an Atlanta negro, and Sheriff McCurdy is laying a net to entrap the fugitive, who, it is believed, fled some distance following the shooting.

Wednesday night Officer Gentry, with another policeman, Ed Holcombe, apprehended a car thought to contain liquor, and at the same crossing, in north Decatur, two negroes leaped from the car and fled. One hid under a sign and when flushed by Gentry

MINISTRY TOPPLES ON ADVERSE VOTE TAKEN BY SENATE

President Doumergue Accepts Resignations; Vote Was 156 to 132 Against French Premier.

Paris, April 10.—Edouard Herriot celebrated his release from office by taking a ride on the front seat of his automobile, alongside his surprised chauffeur.

Fresh and rosy after a rest and change of clothes, Herriot emerged from the Elysee palace, having tendered his resignation to President Doumergue.

"I said nothing to the president worthy of being inscribed on marble," Herriot called to reporters as they walked toward his motor.

Then Herriot hopped up to the seat beside his chauffeur. Noting his secretary's shocked expression, he said:

"Don't protest, you are out, too."

BY JOHN O'BRIEN. Paris, April 10.—Premier Herriot and his socialist cabinet have resigned, following an adverse vote in the senate on the government financial program.

Paul Painleve, president of the senate, is regarded as the man most likely to succeed Herriot.

Pending the selection of a new government, Herriot and his cabinet will continue in office.

Hardly had the news of the resignation swept over Paris than plans were afoot to restore Herriot to office by political legulemans. Whether or not he eventually comes back, the radical socialist and radical groups in the chamber, representing the left political combination which maintained Herriot in office, has determined to accept no cabinet that is not led by one of their coalition.

Those Mentioned as Successors. With Painleve, Senator Theodor Steeg, governor of Algeria; Senator Maurice Sarraut, and Louis Loucheur are being discussed as possible premiers, as is Aristide Briand, who has held the office eight times. Joseph Caillaux is mentioned, but his selection is a remote possibility, because he is not a member of the chamber. He might become minister of finance in a new left ministry.

Dissolution of parliament may result from Herriot's collapse, or a colorless ministry may be set up for the express purpose of failing to

Girl, Once Nameless Waif, Inherits $4,000,000 Estate

MYSTERY SHROUDS BIRTH OF LOUISE LEEDS

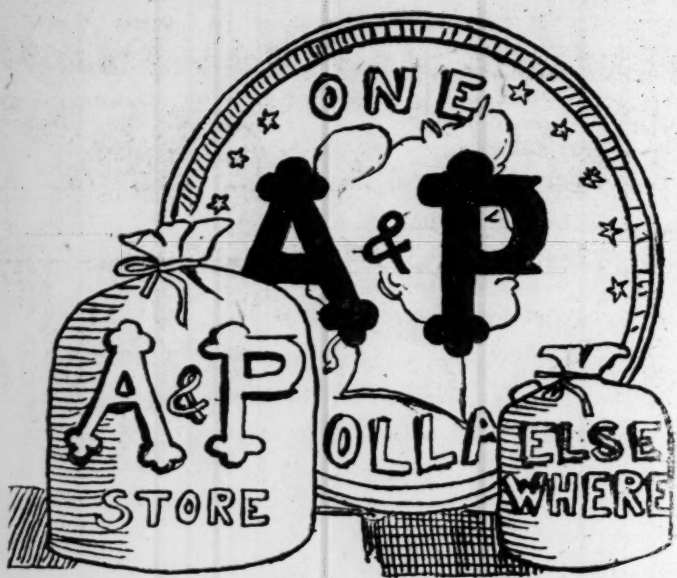

Mineola, N. Y., April 10.—Joy Louise Leeds, 12 years ago a foundling, today learned that she is one of the country's wealthiest children.

Warner M. Leeds, who made a fortune in tin plate production, seven of his children, had adopted Joy Louise when she was a year old, left her the bulk of his estate, estimated at more than $4,000,000.

Two years ago the child was left the $4,000,000 estate of her foster mother, Mrs. Louise Harshorne Leeds, who was killed in a plunge from a window of her New York home. The will of the foster father, who died two weeks ago, was filed here today.

Available data of the estates of rich children in the United States show the Leeds heiress to be far richer than any of her contemporaries. Gloria Carter, received half of her father's $3,000,000 estate and half of his posthumous photographic royalties, estimated at $23,000 a year.

Trade Board Head To Represent City At Exhibit Meet

April 23 in the interest of a Coast-to-Coast highway, B. S. Barker, secretary of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, announced Thursday.

The meeting has been called by Harvey Granger, chairman of the Savannah Board of Trade, and the proposal calls for the paving of a connecting road between Atlanta and Savannah.

Mr. Barker and W. R. C. Smith, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, issued letters Thursday to a large group of local organizations, asking them to join the chamber in sending a large delegation to the meeting.

A letter received Thursday by B. S. Barker, secretary of the local body, stated that the outlook for rapid completion of the drive was most encouraging and the special meeting was called for the purpose of winding up with a whirlwind campaign.

'Own Your Home' Show Near Close of Greatest Season

Approximately 16,000 Atlantans, including between five and six thousand Atlanta school children, visited the gigantic "Own Your Home" show Friday at the City Auditorium, according to Clyde C. Stogner, director. A special feature for the day was the showing of a moving picture film which served to boost attendance figures and, incidentally, added in smashing all attendance records for the week.

Late Friday night checkers at work on attendance figures stated that more than 13,500 tickets had been counted and that a considerable number had not been reached at that hour. Mr. Stogner stated later that the day's attendance would run around the 16,000 mark.

The big 1925 show, decidedly the most impressive outlay of exhibits designed to create and stimulate a desire for home ownership, will draw to a close Saturday night. "The show has exceeded every expectation," Director Stogner said Friday night. "It followed a gigantic event, of its own kind, in a way—the manufacturers' exposition—yet since Tuesday of this week not a day has passed but what a new attendance figure has been set. Both the manufacturers' show and the 'Own Your Home' show a tremendous improvement over similar shows in years gone by."

The show this year packed the big Auditorium with exhibits and has at-

MYSTERY AUTO SOUGHT IN HERRIN BOMB PLOT

Herrin, Ill., April 10.—An investigation of the dynamite being this morning of a store owned by Clarence and Marshall McCormack tonight concentrated upon attempts to find an automobile which raced out of town immediately after the explosion. Pursuit by a heavy fire truck was futile. No arrests have been made. No one was injured.

Marshall McCormack was active in Ku Klux Klan circles in Williamson county more than a year ago, but disquieted with the late S. Glenn Young, liquor raider. At that time an attempt was made to burn the store.

Himself a clansman, McCormack is opposed in his candidacy for mayor of Herrin by the Ku Klux Klan ticket and The Conservative, a Klan official newspaper. He is making the race on the citizens' ticket, supported by both Klan and anti-Klan backers.

About a month ago a similar explosion wrecked the Fowler apartments here and seriously injured Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fowler.

Faculty members, students pledge funds to schools.

Ashland, Ky., April 10.—Students and faculty members of the Senior Ashland High school today pledged $3,290 to keep the institution in operation for the remainder of the term in case a threatened shortage of funds necessitating closing all city schools came to pass. The students voted an average of about $10 each.

Teachers and principals took the responsibility for many of the poorer students, voting as high as $50 each in some instances. The move followed an announcement several days ago that the legal tax rate levy of 75 cents was inadequate and that all schools probably would be closed before the end of the month.

TONG WAR CASE IN JURY'S HANDS

Lee Sun, alias Jack Lee, Chinaman on trial in Judge Howard's division of Fulton superior court on charges of assault with intent to murder in connection with the shooting of Charlie Troy, another Chinaman, in an alleged tong war here, probably will know his fate today. The case went to the jury late Friday afternoon, and Judge Howard directed that a sealed verdict be returned in case an agreement was reached during the night.

Speaking in broken English, Troy told of the rivalry of two local Chinese organizations—the Fin Sin, of which he is a member, and the Hong Tong, with which Sun is affiliated. He declared Sun visited his laundry at the corner of Hunter and Pryor streets on the night of February 11, and at his invitation came behind the counter into the inner part of the establishment.

A door suddenly slammed, as a signal, Troy testified, whereupon his victim drew two pistols from his pockets and began firing, pouring eight shots into the body of the victim before fleeing up Hunter street.

Former Governor Hugh M. Dorsey and J. R. Hines and attorneys for Lee, while the prosecution was conducted by Assistant Solicitor General John H. Hudson.

SECOND KLANSMAN IS FOUND GUILTY IN FLOGGING CASE

Jasper, Ala., April 10.—Homer Sanderson was today found guilty on a charge of participation in the flogging of George Tallant, a hotel clerk, on March 29 last sentenced to 180 days on the county works and to pay a fine of $1,000.

J. C. McCoy, tried jointly with Sanderson, was acquitted. This is the second conviction in the case, Will Dupree having been found guilty yesterday.

Tallant testified that Sanderson struck him over the head with a revolver after the masked band had taken him into the woods to flog him. He said he recognized both Sanderson and McCoy.

Four members of the Ku Klux Klan testified that Sanderson and McCoy were at a Klan meeting until after the hour of the flogging on the night of March 9.

FIGHT IS OPENED FOR BOND ISSUE

A special subcommittee of five was provided to draw up the bills to be offered to the legislature, these to be approved by the entire executive committee at another meeting to be held at an early date. The principal machinery for the handling of the bond money is to include a bond commission of one member from each congressional district.

A membership fee of one dollar per year was fixed by the committee. In addition to this source of revenue, the finance committee, headed by Arthur Brooks, of Atlanta, will raise whatever funds are needed. The program outlined contemplates an extensive educational campaign. It was voted unanimously that a detailed financial statement, showing exactly how the campaign is conducted, what it is costing and how the money is spent, shall be published periodically.

A special committee to conduct the state-wide educational work is to be appointed by President C. C. Thomas. This will consist of five members, including President Thomas, ex-officio chairman, and a member from each congressional district. Another committee to be headed by Emmett Williams, of Monroe, will be named as a steering body.

As soon as the subcommittee has completed its tentative draft of the proposed bills, the executive committee will meet again and at that time the general campaign will be launched.

BAIL IS DENIED TO C. G. RAWLINGS

Jointly for Tarbutton's death, and when tried Tanner was found guilty and sentenced to life imprisonment. Rawlings has not been placed on trial but was arrested when indicted and placed in jail.

It is the contention of the state that Tarbutton, who carried about $255,000 life insurance, some of it being made payable to Rawlings, was killed for his insurance. It is the contention of the defendants that the shooting was accidental.

It is estimated that the farming operations of Rawlings and Tarbutton, who were cousins, included about 30,000 acres. Rawlings is principal stockholder in the Citizens bank, at Sandersville, and a member of one of the most widely known families in Georgia.

Hearing on the plea for a change of venue from Johnson county for C. G. Rawlings, charged with the murder of Gus Tarbutton, will be heard by the Georgia court of appeals at 10 o'clock next Wednesday, it was announced Friday. Both Rawlings and J. J. Tanner were indicted in this case. Tanner is charged with having shot and killed Tarbutton. An appeal for a new trial is now pending.

It is expected that the court of appeals will make a quick decision in this case, similar to the action in the venue change asked by Ted Coggeshall and F. W. McClelland, recently, when the opinion was handed down in the day following the hearing. The change was asked from Putnam county in the Wright murder case.

PLANS COMPELLED FOR TRIP TO POLE

do in days more than previously has been accomplished through months of arduous toil.

Have Map-Making Cameras.
Each of the three airplanes will be equipped with map-making cameras, and through their aid it is expected that new land will be put on world maps, and much of the vast unknown area between the Arctic circle and the North Pole eliminated.

Radio history also will be made, said Mr. McDonald, who was positive in his assertion that radio reports of the expedition's progress would be sent back daily on a wave length of 20 meters for general dissemination by the United States and the National Geographic society, under the auspices of which the expedition will operate.

"Fabulous" sums were offered for exclusive news from the expedition, said Mr. McDonald, but acting for MacMillan, he agreed with Secretary of the Navy Wilbur and Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, chief of naval aeronautics, that because the expedition was assuming such proportions, it would not be fair to confine the news to any exclusive agency. Instead, the news would be transmitted to the navy and geographic society for publication without charge and without favoritism.

He also hopes to demonstrate that the voice can be transmitted from the frozen north, despite the 24 hours of daylight which will prevail there at the time, said Mr. McDonald, and in that event reports from the expedition, and possibly Eskimo folk songs would be transmitted to his radio station at Nome.

The 20-meter set, used during the night in this latitude, will be taken solely to prove that it can be depended upon for transmitting in the daylight.

Rig Up Receiving Station.
A studio for talking to MacMillan on 20 meters will be rigged atop the new Straus building here, nearly 500 feet above the street level, said Mr. McDonald. If voice transmission fails, wireless code will be used.

WJAZ, the new radio station of the Radio Manufacturing company, of which Mr. McDonald is president, will be the official radiocast for the expedition.

All amateurs of the United States will be called upon to cooperate in relaying messages from the expedition, said McDonald, and he announced that he had tendered to Captain Waldo Evans, commander of the Great Lakes naval station, a 20-meter transmitter and receiver to be used for that purpose.

Such Precautions Taken.
Such precautions were being taken, said the radio manufacturer, because when MacMillan last was in the Arctic, of 17,000 amateurs capable of receiving him on 150 meters, only 16 carried on extended success in communication with the Bowdoin, in the United States. There are now under 20 amateur stations equipped to handle 20 meter transmission, although a larger number can receive on that wave length.

The capacity of the airplanes to be used on the expedition will permit of three men and 350 pounds of equipment being carried in each.

The plane personnel will be a pilot-mechanic-rigger, a navigator, a photographer, and a hundred pounds of radio equipment, 150 pounds of food, campaign equipment, firearms and ammunition and harpoons and 100 pounds of camera material will be carried by each plane.

Sixteen In Expedition.
Including the navy personnel of six under Commander R. E. Ryd, the expedition will number 16. MacMillan himself is a professor of anthropology at Bowdoin university, from which he is on leave, and also an expert in tidal observation. Others in the scientific group assigned by the National Geographic society will be a meteorologist, an expert in geodetic magnetism, a geologist and an ornithologist. The ship's crew will number 25.

U. J. ("Sport") Herrmann, prominent Chicago theatrical man and sportsman, described by MacDonald as a meteorologist, an expert in geodetic magnetism, a geologist and an ornithologist. The ship's crew will number 25.

HARRELL ADMITS PRESENCE IN CAR

fired upon the officer twice, killing him instantly, then fled.

The car was found to contain 14 gallons of whisky.

Bloodhounds trailed the fugitive several hours and hundreds of DeKalb citizens joined in the hunt.

Thursday three negroes, including Harrell, were arrested. Ownership of the car was traced to Harrell by the tag number. He tried to prove an alibi, but later confessed his presence in the car at the time of the tragedy.

The judges in this contest were, Judge O. H. B. Bloodworth and Judge Alexander H. Stephens, of the court of appeals, Atlanta, and Judge C. E.

CHARTER ELECTION PLANNED FOR MAY

discussed many of the controversial points in the new charter, now being drafted by E. Marvin Underwood, prominent Atlanta attorney.

Dudley Coates was named chairman without opposition. Mrs. R. L. Turman was elected first vice chairman; Luther Still second vice chairman; and Boyce Edens, secretary.

Members of the executive committee, also elected Friday night, are: W. E. Pomeroy, Julian Boehm, Roy LeGraw, Robert Foreman, C. W. Cunningham, Mrs. K. W. Britton, Ragsdale, Mrs. F. C. Rice, Lindley Body, Earl E. Scott, Fair Dodd, R. A. McMurray, Miss Jane Van de Vrede, Mrs. C. Robinson, Walter McElreath, W. W. Dotsepsch, Miss Katherine Koch, Mrs. W. L. Hummelt, J. E. Cumbee, Miss Mary Barker and Miss Eleanor Raul.

Charter Points Discussed.
While drafting of the charter to be backed by the citizens' committee has not been completed, a number of points were discussed Friday night. Chief among them being the number of council members and members of the board of education, and the method of their election.

The proposed new charter, of course, would follow the charter-manager from used in many cities. It would leave duties of council largely confined to determining the city's policy on legislative questions. A mayor would be elected from the city at large, but would have no veto power, and his chief function would be to preside over council meetings.

The city manager would be elected by council, and in his hands would be appointment of departmental heads and all matters of administration. He would be subject to recall of council, but not until after he had been in office for at least one year.

Chief subjects of discussion Friday night revolved around the size of council and the board of education, and whether members should be elected by wards or by the city at large. Both plans had many adherents, and no definite decision was reached as to what provisions should be made in the new charter.

The committee plans to meet again next week, and probably will hold several meetings in the next few days, in order to present to council at the next session of that body April 20.

ESTRANGED WIFE ASKS PROTECTION OF COURT

C. C. Prezelle, of 48 Walker street, Friday was placed under $750 peace bond by order of Judge Luther Z. Rosser, of the municipal court, when the man's estranged wife appeared before the tribunal asking its protection. Mrs. Prezelle, who lives at 84 Nelson street, claims that her husband recently visited her home at night, and "kissed a gun at her through a window."

She told the court that they had been separated for about two weeks and that he had threatened her life several times. On the night she mentioned, she said she awoke with a muzzle of the pistol close to her pillow.

Prezelle denied the charges, and said ill health prevented him from working. He said he neither visited his home nor threatened her.

LEGLESS MOTORIST JAILED AS SPEEDER

Little Rock, Ark., April 10.—Police were puzzled tonight as to how a legless man can operate an automobile following the arrest late today of Fred Keith on a charge of speeding. Keith, who was blindfolded, has both legs amputated at the hips.

Four "Tear Gas" Guns Arrive To Aid in Fight on Crime

The new "tear gas" gun and an illustration of the way it will be used by policemen to force locked doors to open. The officer is Patrolman A. S. Bond.

That there are other and better ways for officers of the law to gain entrance to rooms, barred and locked against them by men sought on criminal charges than by the use of a battering ram, soon will be demonstrated, it is claimed, by the new "tear gas" gun, which was donated by Chairman Edward H. Inman, of the police committee, arrived in the city and were turned over to Chief Jett.

All you've got to do, it is claimed, is to poke the little gun against a keyhole and pull the trigger. Fumes quickly fill the room, and the occupants are forced to open the door to escape the effects.

Chief Jett has not decided as yet what use he will make of the new weapon. The vice squad chiefs are of the opinion that it would be a great help in their work, but the guns may be kept for more serious cases, when felony suspects are wanted.

"It's a dandy little weapon if it lives up to its promises," said Chief Jett.

HINDENBURG SELECTION DEPLOYED BY BANKERS

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Berlin, April 10.—The nomination of Field Marshal von Hindenburg as the candidate of the parties of the right for president of the republic apparently was as much of a surprise to German banking and financial circles as to the outside world.

Although prominent bankers and leaders on the house declined to discuss the field marshal's entry into presidential politics, it is evident that those quarters are highly impatient with, if not charged over, the manner in which Dr. Karl Jarres was thrown overboard in favor of the former Mr. Hindenburg.

When von Hindenburg's name was first mentioned in the discussion, it was believed to be a move to checkmate the fascist "Ludendorff" or at least to persuade him to retire from the race, thus insuring the national bourgeois bloc 800,000 votes. In financial circles and on the house, today, apprehension was plain of possible inimical effects upon Germany's credit operations in the United States and rediscussing of German papers in London, which has assumed heavy proportions since the adoption of the Dawes reparations program.

Both the house and the banks have entered upon a three-day Easter recess, and until the campaign gets under way next week and foreign reaction to von Hindenburg's nomination becomes more clarified, no prediction can be made of the extent to which the impending battle between former Chancellor Marx, the combined democratic, centrist and socialist candidates, and von Hindenburg will reflect itself in German finance and economics.

AMOS URGES BANKERS TO PROMOTE FLORIDA

West Palm Beach, Fla., April 10.—Ernest Amos, state comptroller, in an address at the opening session of the Florida Bankers' association here today, urged the bankers to cooperate in the promotion of the state, and at the same time advocating caution as to the manner in which they would proceed in carrying out his suggestion.

Declaring that bank vaults were choked with money and safes with securities, Mr. Amos said this was a most opportune time for the bankers to encourage the development of industries in this state.

"Nothing would be as beneficial to the continued welfare of this state as industries," asserted the comptroller. Bank deposits in Florida during the past three months have increased from $197,809,000 to $247,535,000, Mr. Amos told the bankers. He said that the number of banks in this state has grown from 104 to 251.

Comptroller Amos advocated bigger, better banks, in preference to many smaller institutions.

About 250 bankers are in attendance here, and a banquet will be held in the El Verano hotel and the convention will close tomorrow evening.

FLORIDA BANK RESOURCES SHOW GREAT INCREASE

Tallahassee, Fla., April 10.—An increase of 30 per cent was shown in total resources of state banks and trust companies during the three months' period from January 1 to April 1, it was disclosed in figures made public today by the state banking department. The aggregate resources, which on January 1 totaled $224,153,456.00, amounted to $292,112,880.79 at the beginning of this month, representing a jump of $67,959,424.79.

Deposits for the same period increased 45.12 per cent, from $197,809,987.53 to $287,635,588.87, an increase of $89,825,601.34.

The deposits for the past 12 months showed an increase of 30 per cent, the largest ever recorded in the history of the state in a similar period, the figures disclosed.

KANSAS BANKERS ARM UNIT TO FIGHT BANDITS

Norton, Kan., April 10.—The Norton County Bankers' association today issued high-powered rifles and revolvers to the 45 members of the county unit formed for protection against bank robbers.

Members of the company were the bankers' guests at a banquet.

Yaqui Tribesmen Celebrate Easter With Weird Dance

Tucson, Ariz., April 10.—Weird-looking Yaqui tribesmen gathered at the ancient village of Pasqua, began their sacred Easter tribal dances at dawn today in a desert stillness broken only by their mystic chanting and the rhythmic beat of rattles and tom-toms.

Until Easter the dance goes on, exhaustion being the only cause for a respite to desecrate from the dancing columns twirling to the strains of semi-barbaric music.

Odd shaped head dresses are worn by the dancers, and rattles adorn the ankles. Feathered batons flaunt from the hands of the whirling group. Squaws and young braves joined the dances with the tribesmen—many of them from Mexico and others from various parts of Arizona.

The dance, observed annually by the Yaquis, is a picturesque mingling of pagan and Christian rites, portraying the passion of Christian and Indian versions. Christ's betrayal, the trial before Pilate and the road to Calvary all are pictured in the dance, according to the Yaqui version. With these ceremonies is mingled the custom of their pagan fathers which has been carried out for more than 600 years.

Many visitors will watch the dance—for the whites are not barred. The odd belief of the Indians against picture-taking, however, still persists, as usual, will not be permitted to picture the dances.

At Guadalupe, Ariz., near Phoenix, other Yaqui tribes also began their Easter ceremonial which is called the Dia di Gloria.

A small bronze muzzle-loading cannon has been recovered from Nash bay at the ocean entrance of the Strait of Juan de Fuca. The theory is that the weapon is a relic of the Spanish occupation in 1790, but it was recovered by a diver of Seattle.

Colonel Bishop Dead

San Diego, Calif., April 10.—Colonel Giles Bishop, one of the best known officers in the United States Marine Corps and author of several books of adventure, died from a heart attack today at the naval hospital here.

Colonel Bishop was 54 years old. He was a member of the United States Marine Corps and had served in several campaigns. He was a well-known author and his books were popular throughout the world.

Capital Scribes Peeve President With 'Fairy Tales'

Washington, April 10.—Some of the purported news stories being sent out of Washington by enterprising correspondents during the dull congressional recess are not settling well with the white house.

At one time or another, President Coolidge has figured, every member of his cabinet has been duly upbraided as having resigned or being on the verge of presenting his resignation, only a few of which have passed out.

As late as today it was necessary for the white house to deny persistently published stories that Secretary Weeks' resignation was in the hands of Mr. Coolidge.

Although the white house has refrained from comment, another story which has brought a flood of inquiries and which was found to be unfounded, was to the effect that the president had confined his expenditures for Easter to a $65 suit of clothes. As a matter of fact, Mr. Coolidge is well stocked with clothing and it was unnecessary for him to buy anything.

The president feels, in all, that it would make a real good news story if someone would write about the purported news stories sent out by various individuals which have never materialized. He feels that when news conditions are dull stories of Washington affairs should not be forced to fill space.

GERMAN CHEMIST IS GIVEN 3 WEEKS TO PRODUCE GOLD

Gloversville, N. Y., April 10.—Richard Rodrian, a German chemist, today was working feverishly in a ramshackle laboratory here, determined to produce gold from the "decomposed rock" of Pinnacle mountain within three weeks. He has promised his financial backers and representatives of the attorney general's office that he would show them a sample of gold taken from the ore of Pinnacle mountain at the end of that period.

Testimony given at a hearing yesterday by those who had invested in the project was not made public but it is known here that probably not more than $10,000 has as yet been invested in the gold reduction plan. It was said that the financial supporters of Rodrian agreed not to sell any stock during the three week period and it was understood the attorney general's office would not act during that time.

Until two weeks ago the scientific work was being conducted under the name of the North American Mining and Milling company. Then it was changed to the North Reduction company. Among the backers of the plan are several prominent business and professional men of this city. W. D. Welch, an insurance man, is president of the company. Among the investors are M. C. Naylor, head of a large dry goods company, and Dr. A. L. Johnson, city health officer.

Drums, which constitute the wireless news broadcasting system of the native African blacks, can be heard sixteen miles.

MRS. WALKER'S FINE WORK.

Georgia is the first state in the south to receive a donation from the Spelman-Rockefeller foundation. Through the instrumentality of Mrs. Clifford Walker, state chairman of the parent-teacher school age work, who has worked faithfully and successfully for recognition by this foundation, an initial sum of $12,000 has been set aside for parent training in this state. It is most important, and the beginning of a great health and educational service by the foundation that may lead to extensive developments along the same lines in the future. The fund will be administered for three years through the State College of Agriculture, and Miss Martha McAlpin is now in training at Columbia university in order to properly equip herself to push the extension work in Georgia.

Mrs. Walker had the active cooperation of the pre-school age circles sponsored by the Atlanta Parent-Teacher association, in getting favorable recognition by the foundation.

Mrs. Walker is doing a magnificent work in Georgia, along various lines of service associated with parent-teacher activities. In addition to holding the chairmanship of the pre-school age service, she is also state chairman of cooperation with the parent-teacher associations of the Georgia State Federation of Women's Clubs.

She gives enthusiastically and unstintingly of her time and talents in serving these ends so essential to the health and happiness and usefulness of the growing generations.

THE TURNING TIDES.

The marvelous developments along the two Florida coasts are beginning to disturb the Pacific coast.

For many years California has had a feeling of secured monopoly on sunshine and grapefruit. But that feeling is changing to alarm. California sees in Florida a rival now that is not only worthy of the name, but so formidable that the tide of tourist travel has even turned from as far west as the golden gate itself.

Oregon, just to the north of California, looks on with an apparent complacent neutrality, but in the following from the Portland Oregonian—one of the great newspapers of the Pacific, by the way—there is a subdued tone of something like "well, by gosh, it's come at last":

"If Florida grapefruit are more grateful to the morning palate than the grapefruit of California—which we do not maintain—well and good. If Florida sunshine assays more gold to the cubic yard than the sunnier sunshine of southern California, it is all right with us. If the sea water is saltier, the tarpon livelier than the tuna, the hotels of greater acreage, we have no quarrel with such reasonable contentions. Standing on the fair greensward of Oregon neutrality, in a congenial clime of our own, we are in the fortunate position of the old gaffer who sat snug in the croch of an apple tree. 'Go it, Betsy; go it, bar!' said he."

But Georgia is getting ready to tackle Oregon just as Florida has tackled California. The Columbia river apple has made that state famous. And just as Miami is measuring tourist swords with Los Angeles so will Habersham measure apple swords with Columbia river in the near future. When we say "Habersham" we use a unit term for the north Georgia apple. In reality it has the Columbia river product pushed off the grading board, and when Georgia learns to standardize and advertise like Florida has, we'll put the "Habersham" at a premium on the markets of the world. Can't we see the opportunity?

We'll leave Columbia river to her salmon and walk away with the apples of her river's banks.

DEATH OF W. D. ELLIS.

The news of the death Friday of Captain W. D. Ellis shocks all of Atlanta.

It carries deep personal sorrow to thousands of close friends and associates and collaborators in his many worthy activities with which he was identified.

Few people knew of his illness, and less than two weeks ago he appeared in the best of health with an expectancy equal to that of any man of force and vitality.

In the very prime of life, actively engaged in the practice of law, and equally as active in those unselfish services of civic, church and charitable works, his usefulness it would seem had many years to go.

And thus is the tragedy of the ending that takes one of Atlanta's sweetest spirits beyond the veil of earthly trials and triumphs.

Captain Ellis was a son of Judge W. D. Ellis, of the Fulton superior court bench.

No member of the Atlanta bar was more highly esteemed.

In civic affairs he was a faultless counsellor but an aggressive and resourceful worker.

In church he found profound comfort, for it was the avenue of a most cherished service.

As son and husband and father his life unerringly reflected those true Christian elements that guided him through the 50-odd years of good and acceptable deeds.

The state of Georgia loses one of its most distinguished and beloved sons.

Atlanta loses a citizen who reached every ideal of service and Christian manhood.

His friends lose the strong arm of one who loved as he was loved.

His family loses a devoted companion whose every act of precept and example set the mark for all that is pure and undefiled.

May God comfort the sorrowing, for truly the loss is irreparable.

GEORGIA IS AROUSED.

The Constitution Thursday carried the following news dispatch from Jackson, Ga.:

"Georgia is no longer the Empire State of the South," declared Governor Walter A. Harris, of Macon, former governor of the Georgia district of Kiwanis clubs, in an address to the Jackson Kiwanis club Tuesday night.

"The state has lost prestige largely because of what is termed 'personal politics,' and owing to a lack of leadership and vision," General Harris said.

"There is an empire state to the south of us, but people are passing through Georgia and spending their money and developing other states."

This should put the people of Georgia to thinking.

Already definite steps are being taken toward putting Georgia back in her rightful position. The passing of the biennial session bill last year and its overwhelming ratification, showed the first concrete evidence of a change in the tide. In the approaching assembly many of the faces of legislative freaks, who have contributed much in the past to Georgia's decline in prestige—will be missing. All in all, it is the strongest assembly, from a personnel standpoint, that Georgia has had in many years.

The next assembly will be even stronger, in all reasonable probability, for business men are awoken to the fact that they must make the necessary sacrifices to serve their state in the present crisis. And it is a crisis. When North Carolina to the north and Florida to the south develop almost by magic, and by reason of business in government and aggressive policies that invite rather than repel visitors and home-seekers, the challenge to Georgia by comparison alone creates a crisis that ought to stir every loyal Georgian to meet it.

The other day the suggestion was made in The Constitution that $1,000,000 be raised for the purpose of properly advertising Georgia before the world, every penny to be employed in that service. It was proposed that 1,000 Georgians subscribe $1,000 each. Hardly had the issue of The Constitution been circulated before two responses were received.

With organized effort the amount suggested by J. T. Holleman could be raised in 90 days.

Georgians are today learning what they have long overlooked. They have felt the sting of petty politics controlling government and arresting every forward-looking movement. They have felt the distressing results of world-wide publicity given to "night riding," mob activities, invisible government and the like, and the overwhelming majority of good and progressive people have had to suffer from the actions of comparatively small groups of irresponsibles.

The people of Georgia are determined to correct these conditions. The state is aroused to the necessity of regaining its lost ground as never before, and fortunately it has every possible advantage with which to push again to the fore—and become in reality again the Empire State of the South.

An Old Picture.

As they coast beside an unknown land

View from the masthead with weary eyes

Familiar mountain-tops beneath childhood skies

Far-reaching valleys where the river's hand

Lulls the soft lisp waves with harmonies

Of other times and shores—thus we disguise

Stern daylight with a dream, and cast the burden

Of memory on the dull flame of the world.

Dear heart, though time against us stand, tonight

Thou art indeed beside me as of old; Again the music that thy words enfold

Comforts a soul that were, but for thy light.

An outpour, broken thing—a banner furled.

Farming in the Paper.

In his interesting column of "Personal Reminiscences" in the Albany Herald, Colonel Joseph S. Davis, of that paper, tells this on farming:

"One of our facetious friends remarked to us the other day that history, regimens, philosophy, art and the mocking-bird, but said he: 'Don't you write on agricultural matter about farming? He is just an 'e and it delights us to ruminate on hold the suggestion of a bountiful harvest.'"

Commenting on a similar letter, a Georgia editor said:

"We came from the farm, lured by the city lights, and we'd have it known that we can 'run' as straight as a furrow today as any of the lads we left there; we can 'sense' the seasons as well as we ever did, know still full time by the moon, and can still tell the time by the sun accurately enough to catch a train. We're a 'city farmer' now, but a darn good one."

In an Easter Garden.

The sweet belief

That tempers grief

Is best of Love's bestowing,

And day by day

Still lights the way

That human hearts are going.

And hearts that need

Are hearts that bleed

The lives by tempest driven,

Clinging to faith

To the high path of heaven.

"His Own Landlord."

The "Farming" papers, as a rule, are not kindly disposed to tourists, but here's a good word for them from the Albany Herald—

"The motor tourist camp as an adjunct to the modern American is finding favor in all sections of the country. It may be a half-acre vacant lot in the suburbs, or a village or a tract of many acres near a great city. It takes no business from hotels, not patronage from establishments. He carries his own bed and skillet, and is his own landlord."

You railroad train,

Who're rushing in the sunshine,

Dashin' through the rain,

Your whistle is a scream—

But it screams in vain—

We're not from the merry land of Speedville."

Dr. Williams Says—

"I don't pray for leavies to come down to me, like some folks, but for that would be interfering with engagements they might 'n' make up to me; besides, if it should come, it might make me to go home, and I don't want to do that."

Dr. Williams says: "We're not from the merry land of Speedville."

THE HAPPY RELIGION.

In the first place, no religion is worth having unless it makes you happy, unless it fills in hollow places, and brings to life's contour a rhythmic flow of beauty.

It seems to be the law of nature that opposition and struggle must enter into all fine and lasting achievement.

Even the tiniest flower in the wild woods has to look out for itself. And it is such a thrilling experience to come across a lovely, rare gem poking its small head from beneath some rock or fallen tree, or rearing out into the world toward the sun from a group of more hardy contenders.

But this is what creates or rather nurtures religion—this reaching and striving amidst forces that pull in just the opposite direction.

All things look possible when we are happy. Real religion keeps the heart burning. It makes you feel kindly and generous toward the whole world, makes you want to be more helpful and more useful.

No one ever does anything for anyone else who isn't made better and happier by having done so.

Religion is something that every thinking being craves. Or rather he craves the expression of what it is. He wants to know how to feel it away or scatter it around.

The modern world thinks of heaven where all is happy.

Everyone dreams of happiness as the ideal of life. Too many dream, about it and never know that they are all the time walking right through it.

But the happy religion is always the unselfish religion. It is a religion wherein a thrill comes from gorgeous natural coloring in the things of the out-of-doors, and which is transplanted in the human heart where it radiates love, beauty and gentleness.

You don't have to hunt for the happy religion. All you have to do is to let out all that is fine and generous in you. And then you know all about it.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Lost Name

Found Back.

When Czar Ivan the Terrible was constructing the magnificent complex of buildings known as the Kremlin, he had an architect in his employ, whose brilliance has excited the amazement of centuries of admirers. The man's name, however, had been forgotten. That is as Ivan intended. For after completion of the Kremlin, the architect's eyes were turned to prevent him from erecting a duplicate of the Kremlin. This, it is thought, constitutes the bulk of Ivan's library, which he concealed so carefully and for which he kept his constant search. He had the underground passages executed. In vain did Peter the Great search for this treasure in 1724. He did descend into the crypt, but he could not locate the rooms, hidden in the walls, where golden and ancient crowns and the loot of a thousand cities lay piled up, so it was said. Napoleon also had a try, but he found nothing but corpses and his grenadiers almost revolted when the story went around that one of the dead priests had risen from his coffin and pointed an accusing finger at the emperor who was robbing him of his jewels and crucifix. The 800 books are said to be in good condition. The find of prehistoric hatches and armaments may lead to valuable discoveries as to the customs and degree of civilization reached by the people who lived in Russia before the Slavs took possession under Rurik the Pirate.

Professor Stelitzky confirms the opinion that an alien city was situated on the site of Moscow. The archeologists are continuing their work and do not doubt a commissar comes to look occasionally to see if they have yet struck the chambers with Ivan's fabulous wealth. If they ever strike the treasure, the Bolsheviks will surely have another "day."

Great Men

Taught in Sheds.

To counteract "all the talk that has flown since D'Veizmann laid the first stone for the Hebrew university," about the contents of that institution of learning, a writer in the New York Times reminds his readers that the university consists of only four or five buildings, and the beginning of a laboratory and a remodelled private dwelling. As if the size of buildings had anything to do with the greatness of any university. There will probably be more buildings added in years to come, perhaps also a modern athletic stadium costing more than all the lecture halls, if the procedure of certain modern university builders is followed. But the main thing, however, is how much will this new university contribute to world thought, science, research and philosophy. At Leyden, renowned institution of learning there are but two or three small buildings yet it produced thinkers who influenced world thought. Louvain, that famous seat of learning of the middle ages, could almost be put in one of the lecture halls of some of our western universities. Christ college, Magdalen, All Souls in England are not much for size, neither is the urban college in Rome or the University of Goettingen in Germany. Yet these colleges have exercised a distinct influence on the destiny of mankind. The school in Jerusalem is new. But it is in the hands of "the people of the Book." The same people who produced Isaiah, Job, Jesus, Solomon, and the great Hebrew, Freud, Einstein and Ehrlich. There is hope for a school in the hands of such a race.

"Harlequin in a Helmet."

A London labor paper in summing up the election results in Germany gloats over the defeat of Marshal Ludendorff, Bavarian fascist candidate, with the words: "That harlequin in a helmet." There is no doubt the old firebrand militarist cut a sorry figure in the number of votes he polled. And it is fortunate for Germany and Europe that the marshal has been repudiated by the voters of the Reich, but "harlequin in helmet" is a rather unflattering epithet. He certainly was no harlequin in 1918 when he "straffed" the British at the Somme, the Belgians at the Yser and the French at Verdun. There was nothing comic about an enemy who made the allies lose a million killed in these engagements and there certainly was nothing ludicrous from the British standpoint when as late as 1918 Ludendorff launched an attack against the fifth army in which the English lost 169,000 in prisoners and enough material to equip half a million. There is nothing gained by belittling or ridiculing an enemy or a former enemy. Ludendorff was outmaneuvered and out-fought in equipment when he gave up. If he had been a harlequin it is a wonder it took four and a half years to fight him to a standstill. By laughing over Ludendorff the allied victory is in danger of losing its glory. This writer, who spent four years at the front, in as far as his personal experiences go, would rather see Lord Beatty's words applied after the battle of Jutland: "That the enemy was a formidable and a gentlemanly manner which we had expected of him."

Gossip In Hotel Lobbies

BY PAUL STEVENSON

Almost 50 years after he hung up the American endurance record for swimming in 1880, L. J. Blondell, whose record of 31 1/2 miles up stream still stands unbroken, is a visitor in Atlanta, Ga. Blondell, now 84 years old on land and 21 years old in the water, as he puts it, "My last visit to Atlanta was in 1905, when I gave an exhibition at the old Fulton market. I have since traveled thousands of spectators," he said.

Mr. Blondell was a friend of Henry W. Grady and a close friend of the late Ed Bruff, veterans reporter on The Constitution. He exhibited clippings from The Constitution of July 8, 1906, written by Mr. Bruff describing his exhibition here.

For many years Mr. Blondell was associated with the famous English swimmer, William Webb, who swam the English Channel, and the latter, a swimming distance of more than 30 miles. He brought with him clippings from the record books showing that his feat of swimming 31 1/2 miles in 10 1/2 hours stands as the American distance record.

Recently Mr. Blondell has been living in Florida, where he gave swimming exhibitions and handled other amusement features.

"I believe swimming should be taught in public schools," he said. "It is a better way of teaching people to know how to swim so as to preserve their lives and the lives of others when danger of drowning presents itself," he said.

Mr. Blondell may arrange for an exhibition in Atlanta soon.

French Planning

Coup in Air Dash

To Polar Region

London, April 10.—France is preparing to send the first airman to the North Pole, according to persistent rumors in aviation circles.

Ronald Amundsen, the veteran Polar explorer, who is planning to dash to the pole in an airship, is expected to leave next month, is uneasy at the prospect of a Frenchman blazing the air trail northward.

The rivalry between which Captain Pelletier D'Oisy set off on the Paris-Tokyo flight last year when Englishmen and Americans were racing for the honor of first circling the earth lends some credence to the rumors of French Polar plans and it is said that preparations for the flight are being made secretly.

Amundsen already has a competitor in the person of young Grettir Algrimsen, who plans to dash to the Spitzbergen across the pole to Alaska in a navy type biplane. Whether he would welcome a triangular race is not known.

British fliers are skeptical of the rumors, owing to their belief that French airmen have not the experience requisite to a Polar flight.

Ellis, Jr., 56, distinguished and beloved member of the Atlanta bar, who died of pneumonia Friday morning at his home, 40 East Fifteenth street, after an illness of about ten days, will be held from the residence at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Rev. W. W. Menninger, rector of All Saints' Episcopal church, will officiate and interment will follow at West View cemetery. H. M. Patterson & Son are in charge.

Thousands of friends in Atlanta and all parts of Georgia will pay honor to Captain Ellis, as he was affectionately called. All Fulton county courts will close today in respect to his death.

Death Unexpected.
Physicians diagnosed Captain Ellis' condition as serious when he was first stricken about ten days ago, but he rallied and it was thought he would recover. Thursday, however, he began to lose ground, and it became apparent that the end was near. He passed suddenly, however, while members of his immediate family and other relatives were gathered at his bedside.

Captain Ellis was an honor graduate of the University of Georgia, and during his senior year, was president of his class. He won many literary and scholastic honors while a student.

After completing his college work, he entered the law firm of Newman, Watkins and Ellis, where, during his associations with his father, Judge W. D. Ellis, and other members of the firm he gained a wide knowledge of law and legal reasoning, which later gained him the reputation of being one of the best equipped lawyers in the state.

Associated With Father.
After the retirement of Judge Newman and Mr. Watkins, Captain Ellis was for a time associated with his father, but when the latter retired to accept his place on Fulton county superior bench, Captain Ellis entered

Resinol healed stubborn sore

Elyria, Ohio, March 1.—"I feel it my duty and pleasure to thank you for the wonderful cure my husband received from your Resinol. He had a stubborn sore on his back which had been open for four years. Several doctors said that it was a cancer and advised its removal, but it was so near the base of the brain that we feared an operation. I had four Resinol Ointment so effective for cuts, burns and similar things that I induced my husband to try that. After using only two jars of Resinol, the sore entirely healed—every trace of it has disappeared. Resinol certainly was a God-send to us!" (Signed) Mrs. E. E. Kennedy, 243 E. 8th St.

private practice which he maintained until the time of his death. He served a term in city council with distinction in 1905, and while a member of that body, he presented many constructive measures and at all times evidenced the utmost loyalty to his constituents. In 1910 he was appointed assistant city attorney, serving in this capacity for four years. These two are the only public offices he ever held and they were accepted only after the insistence of friends, who recognized his ability and leadership.

Leading Layman.
Aside from his legal duties he found time to devote to church work, and was one of the leading members of the Atlanta Presbyterian church. He was a member of the official board of the institution, and he was largely instrumental in shaping its policies and directing its activities.

He was a member of the Piedmont Driving club, the Capital City club, the President's club and the chamber of commerce. In the social life of Atlanta and Georgia, Captain Ellis was always welcomed, because of his geniality, reserve and unflinching courage.

bridge the gulf between the radical chamber and the conservative senate. Then Herriot would resign and go to conduct the campaign against the senate.

Chamber, Senate Struggle.
The battle in progress over the selection of Herriot's successor merely is a preliminary to the mighty struggle coming on between the chamber and the senate. The left majority repudiated the chamber, step and defiant, despite Herriot's defeat. That majority intends to rebuke the senate in one of two ways. It hopes either to compel the upper house to accept a radical socialist premier, with the same backing Herriot had, perhaps even Herriot himself, or it will seek a dissolution and carry its case to the country. If the people should uphold the left, there would be no alternative to submission by the senate.

Because the senate is elected indirectly, the chamber's move, particularly the deputies feel that they alone represent the true sentiment of the French masses. The radicals will go into the fight with Herriot's majority.

Saturday radical and radical socialist deputies and senators will meet to charge their course.

Vote 156 to 137.
The premier handed his formal resignation to President Doumergue at the Elysee Palace a couple of hours before midnight, after a grueling day before the inquiries of the upper house.

Herriot Took Office.
The vote was 156 to 132 against Herriot.

The sentiment of the senate began to crystallize visible against the socialist statesman during a bitter assault by Senator Francois-Marsal. Herriot realized that the most of premier was the culmination of his life's ambition.

Make Feeble Reply.
When he arose to reply, his spirit was limp. With a husky voice that at times failed him altogether, Herriot struggled to overcome his anger and his own nervous depression. He failed, and after bitter arraignment from former Premier Poincare and broadsides from other opposition leaders, the government was swept from power after holding office almost a year.

Herriot fell on a technical vote of confidence. Following the opposition attacks and the premier's defense, Senator Cheron proposed a motion censuring the government for the state of French finances and more particularly for the illegal inflation confessed by the government. Senator Martin then proposed a motion expressing confidence in the government.

Herriot Motion Beaten.
With these two motions before the president of the senate, Herriot rose and demanded that Martin's motion should have priority.

Instead of turning on Finance Minister De Monzie's proposed capital levy, the senate debate was confined to Herriot's motion. Herriot voted to consider Cheron's motion first and Herriot went out of office for this vote showed that he could not possibly win a vote of confidence.

Senate In Uproar.
When the vote was announced, Herriot and his cabinet rose and walked from the chamber while "Vive Herriot!" "Down with Herriot!" "The Republic!" and "Vive Calixte!" mingled in a tremendous hubbub within and without the chamber. Thousands of persons had gathered in the hallways and the senate building to be near the denouement of the cabinet crisis. Police reserves stood along the thorough roads to quell communist or royalist demonstrations.

Looks Belle Words.
Thus Herriot summarized the situation before he entered his apartment at the Quai d'Orsay. The charge of linen and a short rest. But his looks belied his words, for if ever a man felt his defeat with poignant grief, that man was Herriot.

With Herriot's fall, another post-war socialist government that rose in Europe walks into the winds. Back there behind the scenes, Herriot will find Joseph Calixte, the financial genius of modern France. His role in the new production is problematical.

Merely Followed Precedent.
Before the chamber Thursday, Herriot said that he merely had followed a precedent that premiers before him, notably Poincare, had sanctioned the issuance of illegal paper. This Poincare denied, and in Francois-Marsal's opinion, Herriot's action was a second Poincare cabinet, which made way for Herriot last year, who convinced the senate that this was untrue.

Tells of Financing.
Referring to the advances to the government from the Bank of France, Francois-Marsal said that in 1919 the amount was 27,000,000,000 francs, but that by December this had been reduced to 22,000,000,000. In 1920, the state needed $150,000,000 to pay the United States loan of 1915. M. Ribot, then in power, appealed to French private bankers to increase their subscriptions to treasury bonds. The bankers purchased 1,000,000,000 francs' worth, which the state repaid by 6 per cent bonds voted by parliament. The result was that by January, 1921, the banks' advances had been repaid.

Never, while he was in power, the former finance minister declared, did the financial operations reach or pass the limits set for the Bank of France. He pointed out that in July, 1920, parliament authorized an increase of the emission limit from 40,000,000,000 francs to 45,000,000,000, and that never until November, 1924, when Herriot had been premier for seven months, was this limit passed.

No Excuse For Mistake.
"If your treasury has failed," the former minister said, pointing Herriot, "it is not because you are not receiving taxes which are coming in regularly. All ministries may make mistakes, but there is no excuse when they make mistakes after being warned, which is what you did."

He read a letter from Governor Doinville of the Bank of France, warning Herriot of the perilous financial situation, and said Herriot had promised then to prevent excess emission of notes if possible. He said that the senate knew the limit already had been exceeded when Herriot made this promise, the sentiment of the upper house perceptibly swept away from the government and more than half the senators applauded Francois-Marsal.

Herriot Depressed, Shaken.
Depressed and shaken, Herriot rose to reply. He repeated his charges of Thursday that Poincare had manipulated francs and authorized sub-rosa inflation just as he had done. He blamed preceding governments for piling up debts which he was trying to pay. He accused Poincare and his predecessors of weakening public confidence in the government.

As Herriot spoke his agitation increased. At times his voice cracked and sank to a fluttering whisper. The socialist mayor of Lyons, whose proud boast was that his was the most economically conducted municipality in France, was cracking under the strain of attempting the impossible.

Herriot cited the comparative stability of the franc in relation to the pound sterling and dollar under his administration. He fought back as best as he could against judges already convinced of his guilt.

Reveals Case of Nerves.
During a short afternoon recess Herriot displayed a comical crankiness unusual in him. The senators filed out of the chamber to gossip in the halls. The defeat of the government wound itself around Herriot's neck, a tiny, worried figure. Attendants hovered about and the premier frequently sent them scurrying around the chamber to correct wrong drafts which irritated him.

Then Poincare delivered a lengthy oration attacking his successor, reviewing the financial situation and unflinchingly pointing out that even his administrations there had been recourse to illicit inflation. Herriot insisted that this was not true, but the debate ended with Herriot coldly awaiting an opportunity to crush the squat little man who slumped on the government bench.

The opportunity came and the weight of the senate majority fell upon him.

HERRIOT TOOK OFFICE
UPON MAY 14, 1924.

Edouard Herriot assumed the premiership of France May 14, 1924, when the victory of the left bloc in the elections smothered Raymond Poincare's party of the right. Herriot's accession to the post of premier was the culmination of his life's ambition.

He ousted Poincare from the leadership of the French government, the radical socialist landslide also brought about the removal of Alexander Millerand to the presidency of the French republic.

During his tenure of office of almost a year, Herriot had been a man with a mission. He carried state of foreign affairs, he weakened him by the Poincare government. The pivot of his announced foreign policy was peace.

His belief this could best be attained by faithful adherence to the covenant of the League of Nations.

Aided Peace Achievements.
One of his greater achievements was in aiding in the settlement of the German reparations question. By his conciliatory attitude, he was instrumental in settling the evacuation of the Ruhr. It was through his efforts that thousands of Germans who had been expelled by the allied military authorities, were released and he also permitted the return of the Rhine.

Mr. Herriot was firm in his determination that Germany should carry out the Versailles treaty. Particularly, his "day" with Germany was in settling the reparations question. This matter is still pending. The inter-allied military commission, headed by Marshal Foch, but largely upon Herriot's shoulders, the question pending the outcome of the "security pact" negotiations, which now appear to have reached the stage of success.

Herriot's policy was to secure peace by the project of Austen Chamberlain, the British foreign secretary, for a five-power peace pact. Herriot's policy was to secure peace by the project of Austen Chamberlain, the British foreign secretary, for a five-power peace pact.

Signed Lausanne Treaty.
The Lausanne treaty, establishing peace between Turkey and the allies, was ratified by the French parliament at the behest of M. Herriot. It was the last French recognition of soviet Russia last October.

In an address before the League of Nations in Geneva last September, Herriot stated what he considered the foundation for world peace. The gist of his remarks was for compulsory arbitration and security of peace.

Herriot's policy was to secure peace by the project of Austen Chamberlain, the British foreign secretary, for a five-power peace pact. Herriot's policy was to secure peace by the project of Austen Chamberlain, the British foreign secretary, for a five-power peace pact.

Separate Church and State.
M. Herriot was a strong supporter of the separation of church and state, and recently great bitterness on the subject was experienced throughout France. In parliament, the controversy over suppressing the French embassy to the Vatican brought Herriot seemingly able to withstand opposition until April 7. Then, he modified his position, agreeing to a compromise which limited the religious questions to which France assumed responsibility in the Versailles treaty, and which concern Alsace-Lorraine, Togo and the Cameroons.

One More Memorialized.
A letter was received at the endowment headquarters Friday from George W. Harrison and his wife. Enclosed was a check for $50 as a memorial to Mrs. Harrison's nephew, Richard H. Whitner, who was among the first to fall in France.

PAYMENT OF DEBT
MADE MORE REMOTE.
BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, April 10.—French financial difficulties, which have culminated in the resignation of Premier Herriot, make the collection of the $4,000,000,000 debt owed to the government more remote than ever.

The French predicament also endangers, at least temporarily, the French private bankers, who by private value many securities held by private individuals in this country. Bonds of the French government and of private municipalities may be affected by the progressive inflation of the franc.

Watch Moves Carefully.
This government is watching developments with friendly interest because of the large American stake involved. The executive committee of the Retail Merchants' association will be called together this morning to canvass the situation within that organization and endeavor to have a substantial report to make before tonight.

Mr. Smith stated that he was heading a movement to last Friday and Monday to get many of the business men of the city who had already donated to the fund to double the amount. All of the doubled subscriptions will be given out by Mr. Smith or publication. All business men or private citizens who desire to help the fund are asked to telephone to the Chamber of Commerce, WAT. 0445, and report their intentions and Mr. Smith will see to it that proper credit is given and the same is true of those wishing to send their contributions in by mail.

Exact Status Unknown.
The exact status of French finances are unknown here, but the fact that some 2,000,000,000 paper francs have been printed in excess of the authorized amount is regarded as significant. The cardinal principle of balanced budget—the equalizing of revenue and expenditures—has been ignored. The French government is notoriously loaded with civil employees, and French politicians are afraid to levy the taxes necessary to support this expensive bureaucracy. The result has been excessive printing of paper money and the consequent decline in the value of the franc.

Every time the franc declines a cent in value, the problem of paying French debts here grows more difficult, as these debts must be paid in American gold.

Moratorium Necessary.
Even before the present difficulties became apparent, there was a feeling here that France would have to be allowed a moratorium or breathing spell before she could begin to pay off the war obligation to America. When years was suggested as one proposed period of grace. But in view of recent developments, longer time may be needed.

President Coolidge has announced that the United States will not recognize and paid ultimately, but he explained that this policy would be tempered to meet the ability of France to pay.

BILL IS INTRODUCED TO RATIFY INFLATION.

Paris, April 10.—The finance committee of the chamber of deputies today finally presented a separate bill to the chamber, ratifying the government's convention with the Bank of France increasing the circulation of francs each by a sum of 100,000,000,000 francs. The bill is a financial relief measure must be promulgated before July 15. The separation of inflation from the forced loan was discussed in the chamber to-morrow.

GOVERNMENT TO BEGIN FLORIDA POWER SURVEY

Washington, April 10.—(Special.)—Government engineers will begin work as soon as possible on a survey looking toward extension of the intra-coastal canal system from New Orleans to the Apalachicola river, Florida, and deepening and maintaining a channel up the Apalachicola and Chattahoochee rivers to Columbus, Senator Harris has been advised by Colonel Hoffman, corps of engineers, United States army, at New Orleans.

The survey was provided in an amendment to the rivers and harbors bill presented by Senator Harris.

"I am in receipt of a letter from Colonel Hoffman, corps of engineers, United States army, at New Orleans, La., stating that he would be glad to have my views as to the nature and improvements sought as to the depth and width and any other information in regard to the matter, and assume that the government engineers will begin work as soon as possible on this survey," Harris said Friday.

GUARDS ON WATCH
NIGHTLY AT HOME OF GOVERNOR ROSS

Cheyenne, Wyo., April 10.—The reason for the mysterious guarding of the executive mansion, occupied by Governor Nellie T. Ross, tonight remained an enigma to Cheyenne. Only today it was learned that the mansion had been guarded for several nights by agents of the state prohibition enforcement department.

The guards are reported to be not only seeking the identity and inquiring into the character of nearby residents, but also occupy part of their time prying into ash cans and looking under culverts as though searching for concealed objects. Prohibition officials and Governor Ross decline to comment on the situation. The house is occupied by Mrs. Ross, her 12-year-old son, Bradford, and a woman servant.

Mrs. Ross said that the guards were not placed around the house at her instance.

It will be necessary to issue script for at least half of November salaries, which means that salaries for all of December and half, or possibly all of November, amounting to between $300,000 and $400,000, will be carried over until 1926.

The step also means lopping a number of employees off the rolls immediately, and draining every appropriation of practically every cent not needed to pay contracts already made.

This Summer.

Frank McDonnald and Lane Mitchell, Jr., by winning the titles of best debater and best declaimer, respectively, of Tech High school in contests Friday, earned the right to represent their school in the contest to be held in Sewanee, Tenn., this summer for all southern high schools.

In addition to winning the titles and the trip to Sewanee, each was presented with a medal, the one going to McDonnald having been donated by the Nat. Kiser Jewelry company, while the Emblem Shop gave the one for the best declaimer.

Approximately 1,200 persons attended the annual debating and declaiming contests of Tech High, which were held Friday morning at the Baptist Tabernacle. The entire Tech High student body was in attendance, and all junior and senior high schools were represented.

McDonnald, who, with Henry Danahy, debated the affirmative side of the question, "Resolved, That the State Legislature Should Ratify the Proposed Child Labor Amendment," was named best debater by three judges, Nick Allen, who, with Kingsley Weatherly, took the negative side of the question, was awarded second prize. The negative team won the debate.

Mitchell is "winner" of the declaiming title by defeating three opponents, the subject of his winning talk being "Gold Mounted Guns." William Beavers, who chose as his subject, "They Shall Not Pass," was given second place. Other contestants were Charles Birt and Ernest Pritchett.

Medals of Bass Junior High school, one of the judges. All of the eight students who participated in the program also were awarded school letters.

In addition to Mr. Lewis, judges were W. T. Dent, of O'Keefe Junior High, and A. G. Martin, of Joe Brown Junior High school. Robert Goldsmith, president of the student body of Tech High, presided.

Foundation Laid for Control Of Boll Weevil in Cotton, Jordan Tells Manufacturers

John H. Kirby Pleads for Protective Tariff as Necessity for Manufacturers of United States.

New Orleans, April 10.—The foundation has been laid for the ultimate control of the cotton boll weevil, ensuring that the south will continue as the great cotton producing section of the world, Harry Jordan, secretary of the American Cotton Association, and chairman of its weevil control commission, declared at the annual convention of the American Cotton manufacturers here today.

In the educational work of the control commission, $250,000 has been spent in the past two years, Mr. Jordan said, but only through the cotton farmer can effective work be done. Last year the commission had 1,000 cooperative demonstrations farms to which they supplied machinery and chemicals for control work and each farm was visited by an average of 35 farmers in that district and in this way practical methods of weevil control were brought to the attention of nearly 1,500 good farmers, he said.

Kirby Pleads For Tariff.
The afternoon session was also addressed by John H. Kirby, Texas-lumber manufacturer and president of the Southern tariff commission, who stressed the necessity for a protective tariff. He reviewed a comprehensive review of tariff history, in which he showed that the second act passed by the first congress of the United States was a tariff measure, and that the first tariffs were all passed by the old republican party, which was the antecedent of the present democratic party.

Every low tariff in the history of the country has brought industrial distress, declared Mr. Kirby, adding that in the present situation of world economics, America will commit suicide by abandoning the principle of protection. He said he expects to devote the remainder of his life to the work of the Southern Tariff association.

Sold $60,000,000 of Cotton.
Discussing the work of the Staple Cotton Cooperative Association of Greenwood, Miss., W. M. Gurrard, the general manager, declared the association has sold over $60,000,000 worth of cotton for the Mississippi delta farmers in the past four years.

Frank B. Hayne, president of the New Orleans cotton exchange, in the welcoming address, pointed out the advantages of New Orleans as a cotton market particularly for futures trading.

Charges for handling spot cotton, he declared, were very low, facilities were available to handle as much cotton as comes to the city, and because of the ease in which the staple can be concentrated here quickly, a manipulated corner in cotton would be impossible. New Orleans futures more nearly represent the value of spot cotton than any other market in the world, he concluded.

Traces Cotton Spinning.
Thomas H. Reed, of Pell City, Ala., in responding on behalf of the manufacturers, traced the development of cotton spinning in the south.

and brought out that today there are 1,192 mills representing an investment of a billion dollars, which is far greater than the mill investment for the entire United States was in 1910.

James A. Emery, of Washington, counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers, won an ovation when in discussion the child labor situation and the proposed amendment which sought to control it, gave figures to show the rapid decline in children employed in gainful occupations. He said that although there were nearly twice as many children in the country in 1920 as were shown in the census of 1880, the 1920 census showed 50,000 less employed.

The cotton states, he said, the shrinkage on the child labor has been most rapid, and, in addition, the southern cotton mills have proved in many communities the only gateway to public education, have raised the standard of community living and bettered health records.

Trend in Right Direction.
Asserting that there is very little doubt that the trend is in the direction of improvement in business conditions in general, A. W. McLellan, president of the American Cotton Manufacturers' association, in his annual address, urged members to work in harmony for the success and perfection of the cotton industry.

President McLellan's address follows in part:

"There is very little doubt but that the trend is in direction of improvement as may be seen from a political analysis of trade and price conditions. The economic campaign inaugurated by President Coolidge is bearing fruit not only in this country but abroad. The industrial situation is steadily improving, steel booklets are gratifying, bank clearings are increasing, federal taxes are being reduced and economies effected in government administration and in private business as well. Money is plentiful and rates are reasonable. Our foreign trade has shown steady growth at home there is increasing employment of labor. Wages have a higher purchasing power.

"In connection with the subject of economies and the reduction of our cost there is a cost in fact, what seems to me as almost an extravagance that has been brought to my attention, I mean the cost of distribution."

Problems to Solve.
"In so far as the textile industry is concerned, we have certain problems to handle which are today clamoring for attention. Chief among these is the question of foreign competition in our home market, and the effects of excessive importations of European cotton goods on our American textile industry."

"The fact that we have with us this morning so many representatives of the producers and handlers of our raw material, affords me the opportunity of which I gladly take advantage, to set forth and emphasize what is, as I see it, the fundamental interrelationship between the producing and the consuming branches of the industry. That the two are not only interrelated but interdependent is now an obvious fact. Such being the case, if we here and now put into motion the machinery, or take the steps necessary to bind these two interests more closely together, I believe a great and lasting good will be accomplished."

Good Roads Meet And Barbecue Will Be Held at Bullards
Jeffersonville, Ga., April 10.—(Special.)—A county-wide development rally and "good roads barbecue" will be held at Bullards, Saturday. The definite movement that is sought to promote, has for its objective the routing of the proposed state highway directly linking the county seats of Bibb and Bleckley counties, the proposed Macon to Cochran highway along the Ockmulgee river through the western part of Twiggs county.

A number of invitations have been mailed to citizens in this section of the county and the committee in charge will have an appropriate program for the occasion. W. T. Anderson, of Macon, will be principal speaker.

This road, when opened up, will pass through some of the most valuable sections of Twiggs and it is hoped that the meeting will prove successful in getting this project through. The present river road leading from Macon to Cochran has a number of almost impassable places and the new route will eliminate a number of bridges and be practically a straight line.

GOOD FRIDAY OBSERVED IN ATLANTA CHURCHES
Episcopal and Catholic churches in Atlanta commemorated Good Friday with special services for the three hours Christ hung from the cross at Golgotha.

Following special services Friday morning in their various churches all Episcopalians gathered for joint services from 12 to 3 o'clock at St. Philip's cathedral. Dean Thomas H. Johnston was in charge.

Atlanta Catholics solemnized the occasion with special services, draping all statues in black. The stations of the cross were observed at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

RED CROSS LEADERS WILL MEET TUESDAY
The regular monthly meeting of the executive committee of Atlanta chapter of Red Cross will be held Tuesday afternoon, April 14, at 4 o'clock in the office of R. S. Parker, in the Healey building. Joe L. McMillin is chairman.

BLAST WRECKS HOME OF NON-UNION MINER
Clarksburg, W. Va., April 10.—The home of Jim Scalapino, a non-union miner, was damaged by an explosion early today believed by police to have been caused by a dynamite blast. The miner, his wife and four children who were asleep in the house, escaped injury.

Three men were arrested as suspects. The Clarksburg district is a part of the northern West Virginia coal fields where a strike was called April 1 by the United Mine Workers.

completed for the benefit of all concerned.

Should Have Fair Price.
"With the improvement in marketing operations and the increasing number of uses to which cotton can be put, there is no reason in the world why cotton should not always command a fair price. There are, however, problems to which earnest attention must be given, which are offered in the common cause. Country damage must be further curtailed and a better grade and staple must be grown. Also, a more stable distribution must be assured."

"Manufacturing operations have been seriously jeopardized in the past by violent fluctuations in the market, due to causes too numerous to mention here but the fundamental factor has been the uncertainty as to the size and quality of the crop. The raising of cotton should afford an adequate return to those engaged in it."

Stresses Cooperation.
"The message I would leave with you this morning is the absolute interdependence of cotton production and cotton manufacturing, and the vital importance of cooperation in all problems directly affecting our common welfare, whether such problems appear to affect only the grower or the manufacturer, that the whole cotton industry may prosper and develop."

The committee on nominations was announced as Augustus W. Smith, chairman, South Carolina; George S. Harris, Georgia, and W. A. Erwin, Jr., North Carolina. Arthur M. Dixon, of North Carolina, was named chairman of the resolutions committee, with P. E. Glenn, Georgia, and E. A. Dubose, Texas.

WOMAN AUTO VICTIM RETURNED TO GRADY

With her condition growing worse from injuries received Thursday night in an automobile accident at Peachtree and Peachtree streets, Mrs. Pearl T. Adams, 30, of 442 Peachtree street, was returned to Grady hospital Friday at noon.

Mrs. Adams was struck down as she crossed from the east to the west side of Peachtree street, after alighting from an outbound street car at Pine street.

The automobile that injured her was driven by H. A. Howard, 25 Rogers avenue, West End. Mr. Rogers stopped his car and, after assisting the victim to the hospital, went to police station where he reported the accident to Call Officers W. A. Goode and W. F. Bullard.

Following an investigation Howard was placed under $500 bond on a charge of reckless driving.

Another auto victim treated at Grady hospital Friday was eight-year-old Jack Morrow, of 702 East Fair street, who, according to information given doctors and nurses, jumped from a car.

The boy's back and knees were badly scratched and bruised. Police had not learned Friday where the accident occurred.

DEATH CAR DRIVERS INDICTED BY JURY

J. W. Sikes, alias J. W. Jones, driver of the automobile in which two persons were killed and four others, including himself, injured last Saturday, and J. E. Christian, whose machine is said to have struck down and killed Miss Nettie Jones, of 75 East Merritt avenue, about two weeks ago, were indicted by a Fulton county grand jury Friday on charges of involuntary manslaughter. Jones has been held in Fulton tower pending the probe of the grand jury. His bond has been set at $2,000. Christian was released with bond following the accident.

PENSION BILL VETO BATTLE IS PROMISED

A determined attempt to override the veto of Mayor Walter A. Sims, on a paper providing continuing payment of pensions to all former city employees who were on the pension rolls last year through 1925 will be made in city council at the next meeting. It was stated Friday by Alderman Jesse W. Armistead, author of the measure, and a leader in the fight to secure the pensions.

The paper was voted by council Thursday by a vote of 16 to 3, and council's action was concurred in by the aldermanic board, but the measure was vetoed by the mayor Friday morning. Proponents of the bill claim sufficient strength to override the veto.

Same Action Before.
A similar paper took the same course last year, as it was passed by council, vetoed by the mayor, and when sent back to council, the veto was overridden.

In his message to council, the mayor will take the stand that many of the applications granted by passage of the bill have been disapproved by the city health officer, and, for that reason, are illegal.

"Council did not even have a legal right to vote on any of the papers approved by the health officer," the mayor stated, "as they were automatically killed when he disapproved them. I could not approve an illegal measure, and that reason, have vetoed the paper."

Councilman John A. White, a member of the pension committee, and an opponent of the measure, said Thursday that he will ask the city attorney's ruling on legality of the measure when the veto is presented. The paper was adopted Thursday, notwithstanding an adverse report of the pension committee.

Officers Are Affected.
Among those affected are 15 former police officers; nine former firemen; six former employees of the schools department; eight former employees in the construction department; three former employees of the parks department; two in the sanitary, one in the water department, one in the health department and one former janitor at the city hall. The total amount involved would approximate about $25,000 for the year, it was declared.

While he vetoed the blanket pension bill, Mayor Sims approved payment of pension to Mrs. V. E. Harris, sister of the victim to the hospital, applications reported favorably by the pensions committee and passed by council remain to be acted on by the mayor, but his approval is expected, as all had been approved by the city physician.

POLICE COMB CITY FOR NEGRO BURGLAR

Detectives Friday were combing the city for a negro burglar, who, after entering the bedroom of Miss Emma Bryan, 125 West Pine street, Thursday night, struck her a vicious blow on the left ankle with a club. To Call Officers W. A. Chevening and George B. Lee, who were dispatched to the Bryan home, Miss Bryan said that the noise of the negro entering the window awakened her, and that he struck at her when she called for help.

Miss Bryan's parents were at church when the attack occurred.

An Opportunity for a Summer Camp

It is not often that such an exceptional summer home proposition is offered to the public at remarkable prices. It is one of the most beautiful rivers in America. The property is ideally situated for summer homes and camping. It is without question one of the ideal beauty spots in the country, the land sloping gently, assuring a perfect drainage. The soil is firm and dry. There is not a foot of swampy or bad land on the tract. The bathing facilities are exceptionally good. The shore gently slopes underneath the river for many feet, assuring absolute safety for the bathing and swimming of women and children. For every hundred feet there is a roadway running direct to the river, these roads are 20 feet in width and are turned and rolled. Every purchaser will have full access to the water and all are within six minutes or less from the waterfront.

The majestic Chattahoochee is a gem of Georgia. It lays in a valley of magnificent hills, some of them thickly wooded. The river affords excellent fishing, bathing and boating, and the surrounding country abounds in small game.

As one of the prospects who is familiar with real estate said, "It's without question one of the best pieces of property that has ever been offered the public at these prices."

The C. L. B. Development Corporation has gone a step further and included as part of the agreement that anyone who purchases land has five days in which to inspect it and make up his mind that he has made a really wonderful buy. Any purchaser who is dissatisfied with anything whatever may have his money refunded. This is a guarantee in itself and it is urged that whenever possible prospective purchasers visit the property and view the land for themselves. The land will sell itself on one inspection.

CRACKERS BREAK EVEN IN SERIES WITH MILWAUKEE

Mercer Nine Defeats Bulldogs by 4-to-1 Score

Hamilton, Nelson Stage Mound Dual; Bears Solve Nelson in Sixth

Macon, Ga., April 10.—(Special.)—The most copious weeping on the part of Jupiter Pluvius was not able to stop the first of a twin fracas between Mercer and Georgia today, with the result that the Bear nine sank the Bulldog crew in Central City park's mud for a 4-to-1 defeat.

It was truly a battle of the mound. Riddle expected to be the opposing pitcher. The Box Score.

Georgia scored in the first inning when Richardson'sanky Bulldog short, went to first on Lawrence's error and was shoved completely around the diamond on a two-bagger by Thompson. This ended the Bulldog scoring, and afterward they got only three men as far as second.

Mercer failed to rise to the occasion until the sixth period. In this, though, the Bears found Nelson anything but the puzzle they hitherto had encountered, and as a result pelted out a quintet of hits from which they garnered three runs. Three of these bingles were doubles, these being by Poore, Wade and Smith.

With the victors in such a predicament, and the Bears still another out, Andy Chambers supplanted Nelson on the mound. The mighty Andy put an abrupt end to the Mercerian hitting spree for that round. However, the Maconites revenge themselves upon Andy with the next inning, when Edie Wade, Bear center fielder, slammed out a home run over the left side of the park fence. To Wade goes hitting honors of the day, for besides the homer he took the visiting slabs into camp for a double and single. The single, which came in the fourth period, was the Baptist's first hit.

The playing of both Mercer and Georgia was more than jam-up, considering the slippery diamond. Georgia blundered only once, while to Lawrence, Mercer short, goes the Bear's pair. The largest list of spectators so far this season sat a half hour past scheduled opening time in the hope that the rain would finally subside, which it did.

Saturday is to see another Bear-Bulldog mixup, with Chambers and

DUAL TRACK MEET HERE TODAY

BY MACK THARPE.

College track season will be officially opened at Grant field this morning at 10:30, when Georgia Tech and Auburn clash in a dual meet.

Neither team has been up against any keen competition, consequently very little is known of their relative strength. Auburn took a dual meet from Birmingham Southern last Saturday, but this was no fair test of just how good the Tigers were, since they did not have to exert themselves in any event to win.

Coach George Griffin got a good line on his cindermen Monday afternoon at the annual field day meet. Schwab and Crowder looked best in the 100-yard dash, running it in 10.12 seconds. In a meet where there is competition, as they will have tomorrow, these two boys should be able to step it in some 10.25 seconds, which is no bad time for college men.

Crowder and Sessions will run the 220-yard dash; their time in the field-day event being 23.12 seconds.

Among the new finds that Coach Griffin picked up in the meet Monday was George Wilde, captain-elect of next year's basketball team. George runs the 440-yard dash and the relay. Finley McKay was also listed among the finds. He made a strong finish in the 440, only to be nosed out by Wilde. Captain Varsity Johnson will be Tech's selection for the 880-yard run. Varsity has been showing up real good this year, and should be able to account for a number of points for his team.

Just who Griffin will use in the relay is not known, but in all probability will be McKay, Wilde, Bishop and Johnson will take care of this event. Lindsay Roberts will enter the two-mile race. He should be good for a first place, this being evident Monday when he broke the Tech record.

The Auburn team arrived in the city late Friday. Fifteen men made the trip, including one coach and a student manager.

PAUL BERLENBACH CHALLENGES MIKE

New York, April 10.—Paul Berlenbach, New York light heavyweight, today filed a challenge with the state athletic commission for a match with Mike McTigue, world's light heavyweight champion. The challenge was accompanied by a certified check for $2,500.

The board accepted the challenge and notified McTigue.

Mobile, April 10.—Pitcher Frank Chase, a right hander, given a tryout this spring with the Mobile Southern association team, was named out today to the Laurel (Miss.) club of the Cotton States league. He came to Mobile from the Washington (D. C.) City league.

Jackets Lead Irish Crew Until Rain Checks Contest

BY MACK THARPE.

Rain ruined a perfectly good game of ball Friday afternoon out on Grant field between the Jackets and Notre Dame. The Jackets were on the big end of a 4-to-1 score at the time of the deluge and only had a half inning to go to win the game.

The game was called at the end of the fourth inning, when the spring showers turned into a young cloud-burst. The Jackets had a substantial lead at the time but were forced to flee for shelter.

Tech scored three runs in the initial inning when Denicke singled through the box and went to second on Moreland's sacrifice. Joe Palmisano's double to the stands scored Denicke and he scored a minute later on Angley's bingle to center. Jones then scored Angley with a Texas leaguer back of second.

Palmisano scored another in the third as the result of a single, a walk and two more singles. Crowley started the fourth off for the middle

'CROOK' SMITH WINS NORRIS AWARD

Macon, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—The Mercer university student body this morning elected Byron Lambert ("Crook") Smith, of Fayetteville, Tenn., as the most outstanding athlete of Mercer for 1925, which entitles him to receive the award given by the Norris Candy company, of Atlanta, to the Mercerian so chosen.

Smith is a senior in the school of arts and sciences and is a three-letter man of Mercer, having played at end on the Bear eleven for four years, was captain of Mercer's basketball squad two years and is a baseball star of no mean merit, as he is leading the Bears in batting at present. It is believed that he will be a track candidate also, so that he may make his fourth letter.

Neufville ("Shorty") Poore, of Salisbury, Ga., ran second to Smith, while Sidney Ellison, of Jellico, Tenn., was third. Poore is present baseball captain and plays football, while Ellison played his last year on the Mercer quinter this time.

J. Eugene Cook, of Wrightsville, was chosen head cheer leader for next year, while Andy Robertson, of Decatur, and Earl Collins, of Macon, were named assistants.

April showers occupied the center of the stage Friday and two prep league baseball games were rained out, both battles being postponed until next Wednesday on the same grounds.

Tech High-Deatur and G. M. A-Marist were the games to suffer from dampness, and both games have been set for next Wednesday, the former game being played at Decatur and the latter at College Park.

Boys' High and Commercial were rained out of a practice session only, since neither club was scheduled to take the field Friday.

This is the first time this season old Juke has interfered with the prep's diamond pastime, and only one or two afternoon of practice have been broken up, especially since the early cold snaps blew over. With the postponement of this pair of games, only three games were played the entire week, but one of these battles had a direct bearing on the pennant race, Tech High having ousted G. M. A. from a place at the top of the league along with the Smiths.

The postponement will make practically no difference to three of the concerned teams, but the Smithie club will be handicapped to a certain extent by the change, since the league leaders will have to meet two of the fastest teams in the league on succeeding days. Boys' High on Tuesday and Decatur on Wednesday. Boys' High and Decatur will be in the best of condition, neither club having played since last Tuesday, while the train is going to see a little hand on the players of the leading club, especially since the men are not accustomed to the extra demands.

Tech High has a strong haying staff, however, and will be able to put a formidable lineup on the field on both days. In the case of G. M. A. and Marist, neither team will be handicapped particularly by the delay. Marist having a bye for Tuesday and G. M. A. a nine-inning tilt with the trailing Commercial team.

He still clung to the crutches on which he has hobbled around since the team left California, but expects to be able to get along with only a cane in a week or so.

Memphis, Tenn., April 10.—(Special.)—Jimmy Burke, center fielder for the Memphis club in 1922 and who was traded to Chattanooga in the fall of 1923 for Cy Anderson, left here this morning for Chattanooga to join the Lookouts. Burke stated he would drive through in an automobile.

Burke was out of organized ball in 1923 and 1924, but stated he has been "laying semi-pro ball in the west. During the 1924 season Burke injured his leg and went on the voluntary retired list.

TECH FROSH DEFEAT AUBURN

Auburn, Ala., April 10.—(Special.) After journeying through eight long innings without a score the Georgia Tech freshmen got away with a two-run lead that won for them over the Auburn Tech frosh by a 2-to-0 score.

The game this afternoon was a pre-determined duel from start to finish. Ernest Potter, former Anniston prepman, represented the Orange and Blue on the mound, while Austin Moore, whose residence is at Yellow Gap, did the pitching for the Yellow Jacket bats. Young Potter registered eight strikeouts and only allowed two Tech batters to count a hit off his offerings. They were registered by Wiggins and Brewer, who made it two each. Moore ran the strikeout total of 10.

The trouble started in the first of the ninth inning when "Shorty" Wiggins pegged out a hot one for a safe landing in the left base. Clump, the Tech batter, then came up and smacked out a little infield grounder that permitted Camp to come in for the second out for the visitors.

Wiggins threatened to further disturb the Plainsmen freshies with a two-bagger, but lacked aid from the batting roster and was unable to advance for two men had been struck out by Potter.

The fielding of the game was featured by two spectacular catches. Alvin in left field, this Notaula had handled two very difficult bingles from the Tech bats.

Norfolk, Va., April 10.—The American Steamer Marore, which went ashore early this afternoon off Smith's Island, seven miles northeast of Cape Charles lightship, was floated shortly after 8 o'clock tonight by the coast guard cutter Carrabassett. A message from the cutter said it was believed the ship was not badly damaged.

Jack Slappey Will Hurl Today's Game With Toledo, Ending Exhibition Series

BY GEORGE CONGDON.

The guy who regulates the sky faucets slipped a monkey wrench—maybe a gimmick—into the machinery of the third Cracker-Milwaukee exhibition game of the season yesterday at Spiller field and the 1-and-4 tie in games between the two clubs was complicated by a rubber game, called in the sixth inning on account of rain with the score 2 to 2.

As far as it went the game was the tightest the Crackers have had on the home lot this year. The Crackers trailed on the little end of a 2-to-1 score through the fourth and fifth frames, and had just come back in the sixth with the tying run when the dem busted.

Today Toledo, another American association outfit, takes on the Crackers in the last exhibition game of the 1925 season. Eyes of Cracker fans of 1924 will be centered on Mack Hillis Atlanta infield utility man last year, who has cinched the shortstop job with the Mudhens. Hillis was at the park yesterday, visiting the boys in the Niehoff dugout.

Jack Slappey, the long southpaw, who has been a sensation in the Cracker games this year, will draw the hurling assignment for this afternoon. Manager Niehoff said yesterday, Slappey may go the entire nine innings, but if the weather is at all rain will be relieved shortly after the fifth inning.

Brook Out.

Jenkins probably will catch as Johnny Brock's ankle, injured slightly in a chase he was in between third base and home in the Ogletown game, is still sore. Jenkins has a slight sprain in his back, but will be in shape for today's game.

Holt McLaughlin, veteran Cracker rightlander, and Sanders, a rightlander doing duty for the Brewers, jumped into a throwing battle in the first inning, and in the entire six McLaughlin gave up only five hits and Sanders held the Cracker sticksters to four safeties. One inning, the third, was the frame in which McLaughlin advanced both runners a base and Sanders held the Cracker sticksters to four safeties. One inning, the third, was the frame in which McLaughlin advanced both runners a base and Sanders held the Cracker sticksters to four safeties.

In the sixth inning, in this inning he gave up three hits that resulted in both Brewer tallies.

In the last inning, Ziehm walked, went to second on a wild pitch by Sanders and scored when Niehoff followed him with a double down the third-base line that rolled to the negro stands.

The Brewers started the fourth inning with Tommy McMillan's single that scooped through McLaughlin's hands. Ivy Griffin, first-sacker and former Cracker, beat out a bunt in front of the plate that sent McMillan to second. Bunny Brief's sacrifice advanced both runners a base and both scored on Armstrong's double to left.

Brief Stranded.

In the sixth Brief touched McLaughlin for a double, but was stranded when Armstrong grounded out to Red Smith and Skiff filed to Good in right field.

Clouds were gathering and darkening the ball orchard when the Crackers came to bat in the sixth. Niehoff walked and was advanced to second by Good's single to left. Both advanced a base on Cullip's sacrifice. Niehoff scored. Good was safe at third and Red Smith was safe at first when Niehoff beat the throw to the plate on Smith's grounder to short.

With Smith on third with the winning run, Rod Murphy fanned and Gazella slammed the onion into right field, but was out when Richbourg made a great running catch that left him stretched out on the high-field bank.

Before the Brewers were in from the field, the downpour started, and Umpire Jorda called the game.

CONNIE HUNTS FIRST SACKER

Philadelphia, April 10.—Connie Mack said today he was negotiating for a first baseman to take the place of Joe Hauser, who is in the hospital with a broken knee cap, and that he expected to have him in the lineup when the season opens Tuesday.

Mack decided that the player was, or whether he was a major or minor player.

Another baseball casualty was reported last night when an X-ray picture revealed that Russell Wrightstone, utility infielder of the Philadelphia Athletics, had a broken finger. Physicians said he would be unable to play for two weeks.

Wrightstone hurt the finger in an exhibition game in Florida more than a week ago, but it did not give him much trouble until Wednesday.

LIQUOR RAID VICTIMS GET JAIL SENTENCES

Baltimore, Md., April 10.—Orders from the commissioner of motor vehicles to members of the state police force not to recognize temporary automobile markers issued in Florida has resulted in the detention of scores of motorists at Belair, near here, during the last four days.

The owners or drivers of these automobiles were informed that they could not move the cars from the substitution until Maryland licenses for the year or licenses from their home state had been obtained.

The majority of the motorists preferred to pay the Maryland license fee. A few of the drivers declared they would not pay a Maryland license fee for the entire year when the Maryland markers are good for only 30 days in their home states. These drivers left their machines in the vacant field and went by train to get their state tags.

Protests against the seizure of their cars were numerous from the score or more drivers stopped yesterday.

The men were sentenced to 60 days each on the state penal farm and were fined $100 and costs. Each woman was given a 15-day jail sentence and fined $50 and costs. All will begin serving their sentences Monday.

Legislative Council Discusses Important Bills at Meeting

The legislative council of women's state organizations met at the Woman's club, Tuesday morning, to discuss bills to be introduced at the coming session of the legislature and to select steering chairmen in these organizations.

Enforcement of the present laws was discussed. Mrs. Felton Jones, of Rome, state chairman of legislation for the Federation of Women's Clubs, who represented the legislative council at the biennial held in Los Angeles, brought a splendid report of legislation as advanced by Mrs. Edward T. White, general federation, who stressed law observance and law enforcement as of much importance as any other phase of legislative work.

Children's Code.

Almost every organization of women in the state is vitally interested in laws for children, and the children's code commission, of which Mrs. Alonzo Richardson is chairman, appointed by the governor, has made a special study of the need of better laws for children, and has spent considerable time during the past year in the study of all Georgia laws pertaining to children.

Burr Blackburn, executive secretary of this commission, and also of the Council of Social Agencies, gave an interesting talk upon the invitation of the council of the eight specific bills to be introduced at the coming session of the legislature.

Every organization in the state, almost, has endorsed these eight specific bills and will throw all their influence towards the passage of laws for the benefit of children.

R. H. Hunter, representing Mr. Sutton, of the Georgia Educational association, was another interesting speaker in regard to the school unit system in Georgia. The organizations are urged to study the question of a better educational system for the state and the financial side also of this question.

The "Parent-Teachers' association is vitally interested in all phases of educational work and especially so in the permissive kindergarten bill.

Many of the organizations, and especially the Daughters of the American Revolution, endorse the principles of a bill and not the bill itself, because of the many changes made in almost every bill. All bills which have been endorsed by the organizations are brought forward for discussion, but the council does not endorse, only acts as a clearing house for the prevention of overlapping work, and has prepared by the secretary a calendar of all bills, chairmen and organizations for reference during the legislature.

This calendar is now printed, on account of state meetings being held even as late as the middle of May, until the first of June.

Any information in regard to the bills sponsored by their organization can be obtained by the members from the state chairman of their organization. This membership includes 13 organizations.

Few Bills Sponsored.

Only seven bills are to be sponsored by council members at this session, for each organization is hard at work on the ones they are interested in and are anxious to have them pass.

The League of Women Voters has only two this year. The W. C. T. U. is anxious to see Temperance day, a law passed which entitles the U. D. C. are asking only for a small appropriation to complete the roster of our own regiments in the War Between the States.

Members Present.

Miss Mary Breedlove Chosen May Queen at Agnes Scott

An old English May day will be given at Agnes Scott this year instead of the usual classical May day. Robin Hood being the center of the plot instead of Greek mythological characters. The pageant will take place on May 2 on the front campus. Miss Mary Breedlove as "Maid Marion" will preside over the festivities as May King and Queen.

The scenario was written by Miss Louise Buchanan, and is entitled "Sherwood Forest." The leading characters, beside Robin Hood, Ruth Harrison, and Maid Marion, Mary Breedlove, are: Little John, Gene Dozier, Kate, Katherine Rickards; Friar Tuck, Stirling Johnson; Jackie the Green, Mamie Shaw; Goddess of the Sun, Sarah Slaughter.

The story is of Little John's wooing of Kate, and of their wedding day, when all the people of the country round come to celebrate. The forest yeomen, morris dancers, swordsmen, milkmaids and village maidens, all stage dances before Robin Hood's throne. In the interludes, wood-nymphs, butterflies, spirits of the forest and sun spirits will dance. Robin Hood's part is to sanction the happiness of the two.

This year, due to the cost of a larger and more elaborate May day, and to the building of a new gymnasium, an admission of 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for children will be charged.

Side shows will be held after May day is over—a street carnival of old England, with marionettes, dumb-shows and "Punch and Judy." All these will cost 5 cents apiece, and candy, cake, lemonade and tea will be sold.

The May-day cast is as follows:

Robin Hood—Emily Cope, Virginia Peeler, Emily Eberich and Hilda Kaimon.

Maid Marion—Mary Breedlove.

Spirit of the Forest—Arminia Edwards.

Wood Nymph—Lillian Clement, Lila Forner and Catherine Wolfe.

Butterflies—Blaise Harris, Mildred Morris.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

THE QUESTION OF LONG ENGAGEMENTS.

When a boy and girl are in love, the question of marriage for a number of years because of youth and of finances, neither "steady coming" nor betrothal is desirable. If love is real and the two are compatible, the passing of years will only strengthen the tie. If it is not real, the couple will not be held together by promises. Love is so serious a matter that bonds should not be entered into lightly.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am going to a very nice and well educated young man. He goes to a university and is popular with the boys and girls. He is introduced to a great many of them at several dances and I like him very much. He says he is treating me entirely wrong in going with him as he has been, knowing all along that he cannot marry me or any other girl as he has to finish school, which will take five years longer. He says that in that time we would both meet many young people and he is apt to forget each other. Do you think that if we are engaged for five years we would make no difference? I believe I love this boy more and more every day. He seems to care a great deal for me. He says he doesn't want me to think he has a monopoly on my love, or is tired of me, but he wants me to go with other boys and when I go with a crowd of girl friends to a dance or party I can't enjoy myself a bit. Do you think I am selfish and unwise?

Do you think a correspondence course best for a girl who can't see her way to go back to school again? I am not acting unwise if you let the boy see that you think he ought to give you. Fall in with his suggestions and do as he says, because his viewpoint is entirely correct. Of course it hurts you to feel that he does not love you so much that he wants to claim you now and shut out other suitors. His interest may be dull simply because you have been unguarded and shown him how you are, while if he had not been sure your love had belonged to him he would have had keener interest in you in the future force yourself to go away where, and when you are in his company let him feel that you are happy and having a good time on occasions when he is not present. I am sure that when he is in doubt about your regard for him, he will be more eager to have you care.

Her Lover Is Not Acceptable to Her Family.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 16 and have been going with a boy of 20 off and on for nearly a year. He doesn't dance and is considered very quiet. He is really quiet, but he shows his love for me. The folks don't like him on account of his nationality and every time they hear of my going with him they punish me. I have just been punished every day for three weeks, but my love for him is stronger than usual. I have been in the hospital for four months and am in no condition to work, but have to anyway. He thinks that by going away with him I would settle my troubles, but I do not want to get married because I am so young. I do, and get almost everything I want at home. Please tell me what to do for I love him dearly and want to do what is best.

MESCAL. Your marriage would not be legal without the consent of your parents. They are wrong in objecting to a young man merely because he is a foreigner. Every nation has its gentlemen. It is especially ridiculous for Americans to be snobbish because none of them can trace very far back in their ancestry without discovering alien blood. Of course, if your parents are determined, there is nothing for you to do except stop seeing the young man. Try to make them see, however, that he is of fine character and worthy of your friendship. Perhaps they would not be so opposed to him if they thought he was only a friend, and you went out with other young men.

NEWS NOTES FROM MOVIELAND

The vivacious Constance Talmadge, the "beautiful dumbbell" of the screen, is to make another picture by the author of "Her Night of Romance," which will be good news to those who laughed at her in the latter picture. It is called "The Twin Sister." The author, by the way, is Hans Kramel, and he is also the author of "The Marriage Circle." To those who saw the announcement of Constance's next film, "The Man She Bought," we would say, just another title change, that is all.

"Dulcy," "The Dangerous Maid," "The Goldfish," and "Learning to Love" are Constance's latest pictures and when she has finished "The Twin Sister" the present plans are that she will emulate her sister Norma, who is making "Graustark," and do a McCutcheon story called "East of the Setting Sun."

Florence Ziegfeld is planning to become a film producer. "Kid Boots" is to be his first photoplay. According to the announcement, Mr. Ziegfeld intends to extend the process of glorification of the American girl to the cinema.

There are six villains in Edmund Lowe's picture, "Marriage in Transit," now in the making. They are Bryon Douglas, Fred Butler, Wade Boteler, Fred Becker, Edward Chandler and Lowe himself.

Pola Negri is wearing an engagement ring on one finger. She is refusing to name the man, and nobody in Hollywood seems able to guess.

It now rests with the courts to say when we shall see "The Phantom of the Opera," Universal's new superlative starring Lon Chaney. F. A. Todd's injunction charging plagiarism is the first instance of a play's director and cast being made co-defendant with the producers. Mr. Todd alleges that scenes of "The Phantom" were lifted from his scenario of "Faust."

Cecil B. DeMille now announces that he will postpone the making of his first independent production until midsummer. Until then he will confine his work to the supervision of others. Leatrice Joy will be his first star.

"The Dark Angel," New York stage sensation, has been sold by the Robert Milton firm to Sam Goldwyn for picture purposes. Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky, European actress, have been cast for the leads. George Fitzmaurice will direct.

It will entertain the cynics to learn that when "The Rubiyat of Omar Khayyam" was put into the movies, Harry Rathner, the producer, called it "The Lover's Oath."

Lillian Tashman and Edmund Lowe have announced their engagement and have set next August as the date for their marriage.

Letters Like This Prove the Reliability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Turtle Lake, Wisconsin. — "I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness, backache and nervousness. I had these troubles for years and had taken other medicines for them, but had found no medicine so good as the Vegetable Compound and I recommend it to my friends who have troubles similar to mine. I saw it advertised and thought I would try it and it has helped me in all my troubles. I have had six children and I have taken the Lydia E. Newest Details of Easter Clothes Are Broadcast

BY MME. LISBERTH.

We have all been told time and again that shabby or inappropriate shoes, the wrong hat and gloves or even stockings that fail to harmonize with the rest of the costume spell ruin to the whole. I say "even" stockings, but I might better amend it to "especially," as with the short skirts now worn the hose are the most conspicuous part of the whole costume.

At any rate, if millinery wishes to take a not unimportant part in the Easter fashion parade, she must look to her costume accessories and be sure they are as attractive as her purse, her permit and harmonious to the rest of her costume. Hence this broadcast to suggest a few of the things in hose, pumps, gloves, etc., that Paris, London, and New York consider the latest word in costume accessories.

At the upper left I have placed an exotic pair of stockings from the French fashion centers. It is said that many weird designs are appearing on the Riviera parade grounds of fashion these spring days. The pair shown is of flesh silk and are embroidered in steel heads which is a step in advance of hand-painted and embroidered hose. On the upper right the latest idea in gloves is exploited. These white gloves have "spot" embroidered backs with more permit and harmonious to the rest of her costume. Hence this broadcast.

Three Spinners

ALL ENDS WELL.

This is the last part of the famous fairy tale, "The Three Spinners." Children who have cut out and saved the paper dolls will have the whole story to act out. Watch for a new story next week.

"Forgive me, good mother," the prince said to the first spinner, "but why is your foot so broad?"

"From treading the thread, my son; from treading the thread."

The prince looked worried. He turned to the second spinner. "And you, good mother," he said, "why does your lip hang down?"

"From wetting the thread, my son; from wetting the thread."

The prince grew frightened. "And you, why is your thumb so broad?"

"From pressing and twisting. From pressing and twisting."

Then the prince turned pale indeed. "If this is what comes of spinning," he swore, "never shall my bride touch flax again."

And so it was. Never was the girl again allowed even to look at a spinning wheel. And you may be very sure that she was not sorry.

Insurance executive says Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is "Conqueror of Constipation"

Former addict to pills and drugs says ALL-BRAN restored youthful vim.

Here is a most remarkable tribute to Kellogg's ALL-BRAN:

For more than one-third of a century, I was an addict to all kinds of pills, drugs and nostrums to alleviate the tortures resulting from constipation. They brought only temporary relief. Then I tried Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and freedom from the terrible fear of the race. I am again in the pink of condition, the perspiration even of youthfulness in my advancing years. Truly, Mr. W. K. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is the conqueror of constipation.

Gratefully yours, (Signed) A. M. SWENNEY, The Federal Reserve Life Insurance Co.

Let Kellogg's ALL-BRAN conquer constipation forever for you. Doctors recommend it. It is what they call a bulk food, that sweeps the intestine clean, stimulating digestion and normal, healthy action. Something habit-forming pills and drugs can never do.

Eat at least two tablespoonsful daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. If eaten regularly, relief is guaranteed or your grocer returns the purchase price. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is made in Battle Creek, Mich. Served in leading hotels and restaurants. Sold by all grocers.

BEAUTY CHATS

BY EDNA K. FORBES.

THE WORKING GIRL'S NAILS.

A little attention every day will keep the nails perfect when the hands do not do rough nor dirty work. But the working girl, and by that I mean any girl or woman who works either home or in an office or factory, has a much harder problem. The housewife can wear gloves to protect her hands, but those who work out of the home are not so fortunate.

If you lead a busy life, the easiest thing is to take care of the nails at night time. Scrub them with warm water and soap and a hand brush or a regular nail brush. Let the brush soak in the water long enough so the bristles are not too stiff, otherwise they might scratch the surface of the nails, or irritate the finger tips.

Clean as carefully as you can with the end of a file. A lot of people say this is harmful, and to use an orange-wood stick, but I never was able to clean my own nails that way when they were really soiled. If you are gentle, I don't think it matters whether it's orange wood or steel. Push back the cuticle around the nail with an orange-wood stick, and polish with a chamois covered, soft buffer, using polishing paste or powder if you need it.

This will show up any ugly or ragged bits of skin around the nails, which can be clipped off most easily with cuticle scissors. Now rub cold cream or special nail cream into the nails and push back the cuticle again. This is most valuable. In the morning, two seconds with a buffer will make your nails look beautifully manured.

Lemon juice generally removes stains, but should be washed off and if possible, cream used, as it is drying. A few drops of vinegar is better for obstinate stains, and tomato juice, fresh or canned, for ink. An excellent cleanser is made of 30 grains of salicylic acid and one ounce of rose water. This will also soften and remove dead cuticle. It is poisonous, taken internally, so keep it away from children.

Constant Reader: It would be a very foolish undertaking for any one to try to peel the outer skin from the face. If you feel that you want to have this done, be sure to go to a doctor who specializes in this kind of work.

R. M. R.: It will help you overcome the habit of biting your nails if you paint under your edges with some harmless and bitter tasting preparation. A very old and effective thing for this purpose is "bitter aloes."

A honey and almond preparation is very useful at this season of the year for keeping the hands soft and white. A mixture of rose water and glycerine in equal parts will suit the skins of some people even better than the honey and almond preparations. Always dry your hands thoroughly after they have been immersed for any length of time in water, and be sure to protect them with gloves when out of doors.

In the Garden With Burbank

As Reported by Elizabeth Urquhart And Edited by Luther Burbank

SEEDS AND SEEDLINGS.

The sowing of seeds and the care of seedlings might be said to be done after the same fashion the world over, and providing the factors of heat, moisture and protection the only consideration is the only consideration.

Yet if a garden is to be constructed from the seed up after the Burbank method, the amateur will find he has many other points to cover and much to learn of the various details leading to success.

A morning in early springtime watching Luther Burbank at work is an education in itself.

The man of seventy-six works ten hours a day, oversees a small company of trained gardeners, some of them sent as observers from foreign governments, and keeps under way countless experiments to say nothing of finding time to read and review the many scientific books sent to him as fast as they are published.

Yet he is never too hurried to walk about among his garden beds, to stoop to some apparently insignificant plant, to answer an eager question and sometimes to talk a bit of his early life and struggles and his sixty years of work.

The boxes or flats in Mr. Burbank's nursery gardens are of standard dimensions, measuring 18 inches square, outside measurement and 4 1/2 inches inside. They are made of redwood, or may be made of chestnut or cypress, but never of soft pine, if they are expected to last.

The sides are of different thickness, two opposite sides being 3-4 inch thick, and the other two only 1-4 inch, while the bottoms are 1-4 inch with 1-8 inch spaces left for drainage, and reinforced by wooden cleats nailed across underneath, thus insuring ventilation and drainage. Mr. Burbank also has the joints of the boxes dipped in linseed oil before nailing as a precaution against rust and decay.

In addition to this, the boxes are sterilized every year by immersing them in boiling water and in the case of very valuable seeds, the soil is also sterilized, to destroy any fungus or pests.

"Having prepared the boxes," said Mr. Burbank, "the proper soil is the next important step. After putting a layer of gravel over the bottom of the box for drainage, the box is partly filled with a specially prepared soil, smoothed and stamped to a flat surface."

"This soil is composed of 50 per cent clean coarse sharp sand, 40 per cent good loam, or better, forest soil containing leaf mold, and 10 per cent finely powdered tree moss or peat. To this may be added 1 per cent of bone meal or super-phosphate."

"In this soil the seeds are sown from five to thirty days (with some exceptions), and when they have from two to four leaves they may be transplanted to other boxes and set out in straight rows, allowing 35 to 40 seedlings to a box, according to size."

After spending another week or two in the greenhouse or under protection, the boxes of seedlings are carried out of doors and kept in a sheltered place or covered with movable lath frames as a protection until hardened and ready for transplanting into other boxes or to the open ground, the time varying from five to twenty days.

Where birds are a vexing problem the boxes should be protected with a wire netting for which mosquito netting may be substituted.

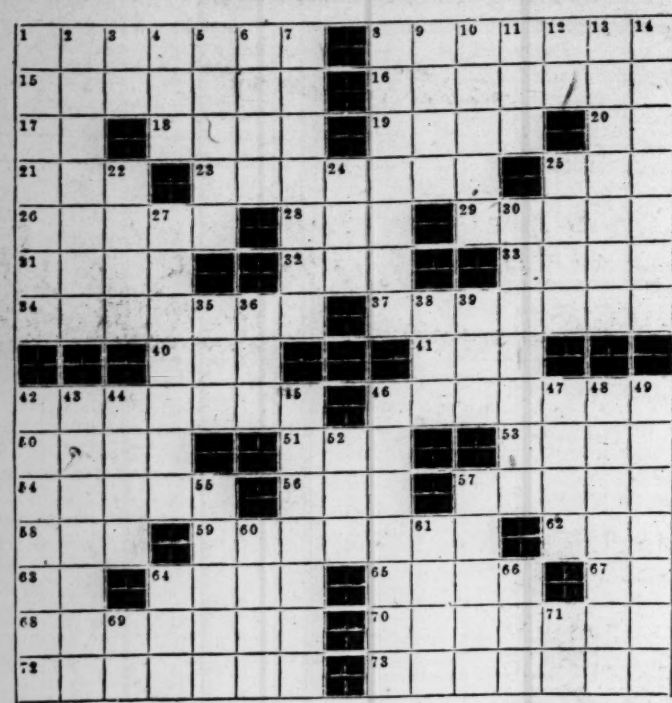

When transplanting, avoid wind, sun, and too dry or cold a temperature, and be always on the watch for insects, slugs, cutworms and other pests. Mr. Burbank says:

"I have successfully used these methods for many years with seeds from my own plants and seeds which are sent to me by collectors from all over the world."

Unlike Any Story You Have Ever Read

The Lost World

BY SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

SYNOPSIS.

Malone, a London newspaper reporter, reflected by the girl he loves because he has decided to go to the Amazon to interview the famous Professor Challenger, a scientist who has recently returned from an expedition to South America with a number of specimens which no one believes of the existence there on a great plateau of many forms of prehistoric life. By way of a reward, he shows Malone two sketches—one of the "offa beneath the plateau, the other of a monstrous animal resembling the stegosaurus—which he had found among the possessions of an explorer, Major Winton, whose blurred photograph and a piece of the wing of a bird of prey were the only remains of the explorer, which he had shot down. Malone is convinced of Challenger's sincerity. At a scientific lecture that night which invites the reporter to attend, Challenger creates an uproar among the scholars of the assertion that mastodon life is extinct, and challenging the audience to send out an expedition to test the truth of his own theories. There are three volunteers: Professor Summerlee, a scientist; Malone, still in quest of adventure, and Lord John Roxton, well-known sportsman and explorer. On a foggy morning in the spring the expedition set out. Challenger has given them detailed instructions to be opened, he specifies, at Manos on July 15 at noon.

These were that Lord John had found himself some years before in that no-man's land which is formed by the half-defined borders between Peru, Brazil and Colombia. In this great district the wild rubber tree flourishes, and has become, as in the Congo, a curse to the natives, who can only be compared to their tormented labor unless the Spaniards upon the old silver mines of Darien. A handful of villainous half-breeds dominated the country, and such Indians as would support them, and turned the rest into slaves, terrorizing them with the most inhuman tortures in order to force them to gather the indiarubber, which was then floated down the river to Para. Lord John Roxton expostulated on behalf of the wretched victims, and received nothing but threats and insults for his pains. He then formally declared war against Pedro Lopez, the leader of the slave-drivers, enrolled a band of runaway slaves in his service, armed them, and conducted a campaign, which ended by his killing with his own hands the notorious half-breed and breaking down the system which he represented.

No wonder that the ginger-headed man with the silky voice and the free and easy manners was now looked upon with deep interest upon the banks of the great South American river, though the feelings he inspired were naturally mixed, since the gratitude of the natives was equalled by the resentment of those who desired to exploit them. One useful result of his former experiences was that he could talk fluently in the Lingua Geral, which is the peculiar talk, one-third Portuguese and two-thirds Indian, which is current all over Brazil.

I have said before that Lord John Roxton was a South Americanist. He could not speak of that great country without ardor, and this ardor was infectious. For, ignorant as I was, he fixed my attention and stimulated my curiosity. How I wish I could reproduce the glamour of his discourses, the peculiar mixture of accurate knowledge and of racy imagination which gave them their fascination, until even the Professor's cynical and sceptical smile would gradually vanish from his thin face as he listened. He would tell the history of the mighty river so rapidly jagged handwriting of Professor Challenger were the words:

THE GUMPS—THE MORE HASTE THE LESS FEED

Instructions to Lord John Roxton and party. To be opened at Manos upon July 15, at 12 o'clock precisely.
Lord John had placed his watch upon the table beside him.
"We have seven more minutes," said he. "The old dear is very precise."

Professor Summerlee gave an acid smile as he picked up the envelope in his gait hand.
"What can it possibly matter whether we open it now or in seven minutes?" said he. "It is all part and parcel of the same system of quackery and nonsense, for which I regret to say that the writer is notorious."

"Oh, come, we must play the game according to rules," said Lord John.

"It's old man Challenger's show and we are here by his good will, so it would be rotten bad form, if we didn't follow his instructions to the letter."

"A pretty business it is!" cried the Professor bitterly. "It struck me as preposterous in London, but I'm bound to say that it seems even more so upon closer acquaintance. I don't know what is inside this envelope, but, unless it is something pretty definite, I shall be much tempted to take the next down-river boat and catch the Bolivia at Para. After all, I have some more responsible work in the world than to run about disproving the assertions of a lunatic. Now, Roxton, surely it is time."

"Time it is," said Lord John. "You can blow the whistle." He took up the envelope and cut it with his pen-knife. From it he drew a folded sheet of paper. This he carefully opened out and flattened on the table. It was a blank sheet. He turned it over. Again it was blank. We looked at each other in a bewildered silence, which was broken by a discordant burst of derisive laughter from Professor Summerlee.

"It is an open admission," he cried.

"What more do you want? The fellow is a self-confessed humbug. We have only to return home and report him as the brazen impostor that he is."

"Invisible ink!" I suggested.

"I don't think," said Lord Roxton, holding the paper to the light. "No, young fellow my lad, there is no use deceiving yourself. I'll go ball for it that nothing has ever been written upon this paper."

"May I come in?" boomed a voice from the veranda.

BITS OF N. Y. LIFE

BY O. O. MINTRE

At Quarantine.—After two months' absence it is pleasant to hear the New York newsboys scurrying aboard at Quarantine crying "Morning papers!" I believe I prefer the "Hully Gee" of the Boverly to the

"Oui Monsieur" and "Very good, sir" over there.
I have come back a linguist—speaking English, American, and New York. It was refreshing to see Miss Liberty with her torch aloft and the jagged beauty of the skyline. Steaming up the North river to the pier, New York never looked more lovely.

There is always a welcome for returning voyagers. Whistles of factories blow and the river craft siren their shrill greeting. The first touch of spring is coming to Jersey hills. Little whiffs of smoke raced from the big stacks like clouds hurrying back to the sky. Activity everywhere.

Crowds pressed to the ship's rail to locate friends and relatives amid the blur of faces and flutter of handkerchiefs on the pier. I heard one little boy megaphone: "Mother, what did you bring me?" Many blew kisses to loved ones while tears streamed down their cheeks.

I have always lacked these emotions but I admire them in others. My greeting of affection is usually a placid "How are you?" and a little embarrassment. But it is a very common experience for reunited people to swoon at the pier from mere happiness and excitement.

The battery of news photographers and movie men were at the gangplank to snap with whirling clicks all the celebrities aboard. And when the passengers strike the firm foundation of the pier, following the awaying motion of the boat, they lurch about like drunken folk.

Custom inspection is a dreary procedure. It comes at a time when the passengers are seeking to rush to their homes. Yet they must stand sometimes like cattle for hours in alphabetical array while their baggage is torn up and rummaged.

I stepped into the smoking lounge where most of the drinking is done at the three-mile limit to get first hand evidence of the taked-of snoring crowds getting the final drink.

Outside of two stewards I was the only person in the room. Not a drink was being served.
